10th Straight Success for Saturn Program

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. AP --The Saturn 1 rocket concluded its flight program with a 10th straight success today and hurled into orbit Pegasus 3, a giant luminescent space bird whose "feathers" may one day be plucked by space-walking astronauts.

A year or so from now, if the venture appears feasible, a Gemini astronaut wearing a rocket pack may leave his spacecraft and rip off detachable metal plates carried by Pegasus 3 to bring them back to earth for study.

The satellite joined two earlier pegasus payloads already in space recording the impact or meteorites to learn how much of a threat they pose to lengthy manned space flight.

Viet Cong in Surprise Attack

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP--A Viet Cong force attacked a government training center 75 miles southwest of Saigon today and inflicted heavy casualties, a U. S. military spokesman announced.

An estimated 125 to 500 guerrillas hit the Tan An regional force training center with 57mm recoilless rifles and machine guns, the spokesman said.

The Viet Cong sent a suicide demolition team to blow up an ammunition dump at the center but the guerrillas didn't reach the dump, the spokesman reported.

Four Injured in Two-Car Crash

Four persons were injured in a two-car collision on highway W a half mile north of Cape Girardeau Thursday at 7:10 p.m.

A 1961 Pontiac driven by Sabdra Eakins, 19, Cape Girardeau, and a 1957 Dodge driven by Jacob Burton, 23, Thebes, Ill., collided. The two cars struck headon, the highway patrol reported.

Injured were the driver of the Pontiac with fractured left leg and forehead cuts, and a passenger, Jackie Draper, cut forehead. In the Dodge two were injured. The driver with a cut left knee and possible chest injury, and a passenger, Ethel Burton, with cut head and possible chest injury.

In an accident at 4 p.m. yesterday six miles west of Marston, a 1951 International dump truck driven by Dolan Jarnagin, 33, Marston, failed to make curve and ran off the road and into a ditch. The driver received a fractured arm and severe scalp cut, and was taken to the Sikeston hospital.

At 5:20 a.m. Thursday on highway 25 near Dutchtown, a 1962 White tractor trailer, driven by Thomas Robison, 28, Texarkana, Ark., ran off the road on a curve. It was loaded with empty bottles and kegs.

Two School Districts to Await County Action

The Scott Central R-5 and Sikeston R-6 school boards and superintendents unofficially agreed last night to wait for the Scott county school board to submit a school reorganization plan before urging that the two districts merge.

The boards met in the Sikeston administrative office for two hours of discussion.

This wait on the reorganization plan probably means that instead of just the people in the R-5 district deciding whether or not to merge with Sikeston, there would be a county wide election in October or November.

The county board is waiting for a reorganization plan to be submitted to it by a committee by Aug. 5. The plan is being drawn up by a seven-member committee. Each school district in the county has a representative on it.

If the county board accepts the committee's plan for redistricting it will in turn submit the plan to the state by September.

If the state accepts the program a countywide election would be held within 60 days.

If the election should fail to reorganize the districts in the county it will be one year before another plan can be voted on.

If Scott Central had agreed to annex with Sikeston and the election had failed, it would have taken two years before another annexation election could be held.

According to Lynn Twitty, chairman of the redistricting committee appointed by the county board and superintendent of Sikeston schools, the plan as it now stands will divide the county into north and south school districts.

The southern district as proposed would be made up of the merged R-5 and R-6 school districts.

The rest of the districts in the county, R-1, Illmo-Scott City; R-2, Chaffee; R-3 Oran; R-4, Benton; and C-7, Kelso, as proposed would form a northern district in the county.

The plans at this time have not progressed far enough to determine the proposed location of the schools.

County board members say that the northern district would have to build a new high school.

The cost of the proposed new high school in the northern district is expected to be about $1 million.

Plans are that the southern school district would have its high school in Sikeston.

The proposed location of any of the junior high and grade schools in the southern district has not been determined.

Supt. Twitty said: Possibly we can have a junior high school in the Scott Central Building, but we won't know until this thing is studied further. That will be a problem of the new school board.

"In spite of our, (R-6), high $4 tax levy we are spending each year $114 less on each child than the national average.

"If we are merged together it would mean that the people in the R-5 district would receive a raise in their tax rate and the people of the R-6 district would receive a decrease, although the changes won't be much."

President of the Sikeston Board of Education L. M. Standley told the group that he thought the R-6 district would be more than happy to receive R-5, but only if they were in favor of merging the districts.

C. B. Taylor, president of the R-5 board of education, said that he thought that the people and the board of his district felt that it would be to the advantage of the students if the two districts merged.

The R-6 high school offers 90 units of study as compared to 36 at the R-5 high school. Thirty of the 90 units offered at Sikeston are in the vocational program.

Twitty commented:

"About 60 per cent of our students do not attend college after they graduate and they are ill prepared to provide for themselves adequately. This vocational program helps the unemployables to make themselves employable."

Twitty said that because of the size of the R-6 schools they could have more to offer the students:

"On a comparative scale you people in the R-5 school district have just as good a school as we do. But, we are just larger, which allows us to be able to get more and offer more to the students.

"When and if we merge there will be advantages to both school districts. It will allow us to get more education to the students per dollar."

Superintendent of R-5 schools Roy Ragain said:

"The need for our districts coming together is very apparent. A good example is that in our school we offer 36 units to the students. The vocational program in the R-6 school alone has 30 units.

"We have a good small high school, but we just can't offer our students enough education. Consequently they are entering life and college on a poor foundation.

"I have seen the vocation program here at Sikeston and it is wonderful.

"I personally feel that the people in my district, although they would have to pay higher taxes, would consent to the districts being made into one.

"Since the greatest majority of graduates from Scott Central do not attend college, I think that the vocation program, to which R-5 is presently sending 11 students, would be a great asset."

R-5 Board President Taylor said:

"I'm convinced it would be good. I would be proud to be a part of Sikeston. I want our kids to have the best that money can offer."

Since the beginning of the vocational program at Sikeston 98 per cent of the students have been placed in jobs.

Marston Will Ballot on Gas Franchise

MARSTON — Voter approval of installation of natural gas services for this city seems certain in a special election to be held Aug. 17.

The board of aldermen have passed an ordinance to grant a franchise to the Associated Natural Gas Company to construct, maintain, and operate a natural gas distribution system in Marston. The ordinance will be binding, pending a favorable vote in the election.

Marston would receive monetary benefits if the franchise is approved. Under terms of the ordinance, the gas company would pay the city $100 per year for each year of the 20-year franchise beginning Sept. 1.

In addition, the company would pay to the city one per cent of its gross revenues received from sale of gas to domestic and commercial customers within the city limits for five years. After the initial five years lapse, the city would receive two per cent of the gross revenues until the end of the franchise.

After the gas company and the city procure all necessary permits from state and federal regulatory agencies, the company would have 12 months to complete construction of the distribution system and to begin service.

Voting Rights Way Cleared

WASHINGTON AP -- A compromise by Senate-House conferees has cleared the way for passage next week of the administration's voting - rights bill.

The measure would suspend literacy tests and permit federal registration of voters in wide areas of the South to prevent Negroes from being denied their voting rights.

President Johnson has predicted that "Negro voting will double and redouble in years to come" if Negroes take advantage of the bill.

Senate-House conferees appointed to reconcile differences between the bill passed by the Senate May 26 and the bill passed by the House July 9 reached agreement Thursday at their sixth meeting.

The compromise drops a House-approved ban on state poll taxes, but it contains a strengthened congressional finding that the right to vote is denied or abridged by making

Future Callup Possible

WASHINGTON AP -- Certain selected units of the National Guard and Reserve will be brought to peak readiness in the months ahead, officials said today.

This was evidence that a call-up of Reserve forces remains a strong possibility for the future, even if President Johnson has decided against such a course for the present.

In effect, the Pentagon will be creating a super-ready Reserve that will have the highest priority.

Units so tapped likely will be given additional weekend training, will get new clothing supplies, new spare parts for their equipment and possibly additional gear from stockpiles and lower priority units.

They would be the first to go into federal service and, officials hope, would be in the best possible shape to meet their deployment objectives --eight to twelve weeks after muster in the case of priority Army guard and Army reserve units.

It was indicated that two of three first-line National Guard infantry divisions may be chosen for the special treatment.

There are four such divisions -- the 26th of Massachusetts, the 28th of Pennsylvania, the 42nd of New York and the 30th of North Carolina.

Some of the eight priority infantry brigades in the Army guard and reserve also may be selected to undergo increased readiness preparations.

These eight are the 157th of Pennsylvania, the 187th of Massachusetts, the 191st of Montana and the 205th of Minnesota, all in the Reserve; the 29th of Hawaii, the 69th of Kansas, the 92nd of Puerto Rico and the 258th of Arizona, Virginia and Missouri, all in the guard.

Certain lesser supporting units also may be included.

Elements of the Air National Guard and the Air Reserve may be given additional attention to sharpen their readiness.

It is known that officials of the National Guard Bureau have proposed keeping Air Guard squadrons out of federal service until the 11th hour on grounds they are already in such shape that they can be used in less than 30 days from mobilization.

Most priority units are very close to the manpower ceilings which represent 80 per cent of their mobilization strength.

The additional 20 per cent would be drawn from the Army Reserve manpower pool.

Discuss Steel Strike Notice

PITTSBURGH, Pa. AP--The United Steelworkers executive board and wage policy committee met today to consider serving 30 days strike notice on the basic steel industry.

Under the interim contract that averted a strike May 1, either side is free to serve 30 days notice of termination on or after Aug. 1. That would make midnight Aug. 30 the earliest possible date for the nation's first steel strike since 1959.

Although negotiations reportedly have not progressed as well as expected, serving of strike notice would be routine.

Fortas Court Nomination Draws Republican Fire

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson's nomination of Abe Fortas, his old friend and adviser, to the Supreme Court has come under fire from some Republican members of Congress.

There was some criticism on both sides of the Capitol Thursday, along with the announcement that the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearing on the nomination will be postponed until Aug. 12.

However, it did not appear that the criticism posed any serious threat to the confirmation of Fortas, a Washington lawyer whose background includes service in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal. Acting Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said the resetting of the hearing was at Fortas' request.

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., cited in the House Thursday an article in Esquire magazine which, he said, depicted Fortas as trying to suppress the story about the arrest last fall of Walter Jenkins, then a top White House aide, on morals charges.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, backed Hall, saying Fortas "did everything in his power to kill the story."

Hall told the House that "there is a serious question whether Mr. Fortas will be able to excise independence because of his intimate ties with the President and because he has been a quiet participant in some of the more dubious transactions involving the Johnson administration."

He said Fortas had served as counsel for Bobby Baker, former Senate majority secretary whose business affairs came under congressional scrutiny. Hall also cited reports that Fortas had supervised establishment of a trust to administer the President's radio and television properties.

Gross called the naming of Fortas to the Supreme Court inconceivable.

The House does not vote on confirmation of presidential appointments.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., said, "It is with regret that I must announce that I am not

Fertility Drug Used in Five Countries

LONDON (AP) — Women in at least five countries are reported to have become pregnant after taking a fertility drug used by two women who gave birth to quintuplets this week. Multiple births appear likely in a number of the cases.

Four of the five quintuplets born Thursday to a Swedish woman died within a few hours. The survivor was a girl. The Swedish quints were 11 weeks premature and weighed between 2 pounds and 2 pounds 10 ounces. The mother's identity has not been announced.

The boy and four girls born three days ago to Mrs. Samuel Lawson in Auckland, New Zealand, were reported "just fine" today. They were seven weeks premature and weighed between 3 pounds 3 ounces and 4 pounds 3 ounces.

Both women had been given a pituitary hormone extract developed in Sweden and known in some countries as Gonadotrophin. Injected into the bloodstream, it aids some infertile women who normally are unable to produce an egg cell.

Several New Zealand women are pregnant after taking the treatment. Some have been told they may have more than one baby. But their doctors at National Women's Hospital do not expect more than triplets.

The hormone treatment also is being given to women in the United States, Britain and Australia.

An infertility clinic in New York reported that 15 of the 21 women treated have conceived, 7 had given birth so far, and 4 had multiple births. One, Mrs. Martin Brecker of New York, had quadruplets.

A similar ratio of multiple births was reported by the Swedish doctor who developed the treatment, Prof. Carl-Axel Gemzell, 54, of Uppsala University. He said 50 of 100 women he treated became pregnant and 25 gave birth to twins or triplets.

A Melbourne, Australia, doctor reported that he has been using the drug since April 1963. He said seven previously childless wives had conceived and two had twins.

Ozarks Today Are Far Cry from Dusty Mountain Region Promoted in 1919

The Ozarks today are a far cry from the mountain area a group of civic club members saw in 1919 when they promoted a motorcade from Joplin, Mo., to Eureka Springs, Ark.

Out of that autumn trip over devious, winding and largely unmarked roads grew the Ozarks Playground Association—an organization largely credited for growth of the mountain territory into a vast recreation area now attracting more than one billion dollars in tourist business each year.

Travelers over the 94.4 mile trip from Joplin to Eureka Springs were advised to take along dusters and spare tires. A service truck brought up the rear to care for autos that missed bad turns or failed to slow down enough for bumps.

The club members saw a beautiful wilderness and decided to form a 13-county Missouri-Arkansas group to stir up interest in the scenic area. In November, 1919, the Ozarks Playground Association was formed.

Only one lake, Taneycomo, was included in the original area. The resort and scenic communities of Eureka Springs, Harrison, Fayetteville, Rogers, Springdale, Monte Ne, Bella Vista and Sulphur Springs in Arkansas and Roaring River, Cassville, Branson, Rockaway, Hollister, Neosho and Sarcoxie in Missouri made up the rest of the area.

Today the Ozarks playground is made up of thousands of scenic square miles of land, eight major man-made lakes. over 203,000 acres of water and some 3,116 miles of shoreline in the mountain areas of Arkansas and Missouri.

The two states reported in 1964 a combined tourist dollar income of more than $1 billion. The association estimates that some $165 million to $175 million of that was spent in the Ozarks.

The small group formed nearly 46 years ago is now supported by more than 1,000 businessmen-members who contribute time and money to promote the area.

The Association's primary work is in getting word to the nation that the Ozarks are a top-rate recreation area.

Highly successful in this endeavor, the association has turned lately to promoting the Ozarks as an ideal place for retirement.

The organization publishes a 54-page, color-filled brochure outlining attractions of the parks, lakes, resort and retirement communities. The brochure gives a complete list of events in the area each year. It furnishes such information as tax rates and industrial data.

"We run out of them most every year," says Don D. Heter, executive manager of the playground association.

The 1965 brochure will have more information on retirement opportunities, says Heter. There will be more descriptive material on vacations and more data on tax rates.

More than a dozen major retirement areas have been developed in the Ozarks in the past decade, ranging from subdivided lakeside lots to whole planned towns.

The playground association put $89,000 into its budget for promoting the Ozarks this year and plans to spend a larger amount in 1966.

The R-6 high school offers 90 units of study as compared to 36 at the R-5 high school. Thirty of the 90 units offered at Sikeston are in the vocational program.

Twitty commented:

"About 60 per cent of our students do not attend college after they graduate and they are ill prepared to provide for themselves adequately. This vocational program helps the unemployables to make themselves employable."

Twitty said that because of the size of the R-6 schools they could have more to offer the students:

"On a comparative scale you people in the R-5 school district have just as good a school as we do. But, we are just larger, which allows us to be able to get more and offer more to the students.

"When and if we merge there will be advantages to both school districts. It will allow us to get more education to the students per dollar."

Superintendent of R-5 schools Roy Ragain said:

"The need for our districts coming together is very apparent. A good example is that in our school we offer 36 units to the students. The vocational program in the R-6 school alone has 30 units.

"We have a good small high school, but we just can't offer our students enough education. Consequently they are entering life and college on a poor foundation.

"I have seen the vocation program here at Sikeston and it is wonderful.

"I personally feel that the people in my district, although they would have to pay higher taxes, would consent to the districts being made into one.

"Since the greatest majority of graduates from Scott Central do not attend college, I think that the vocation program, to which R-5 is presently sending 11 students, would be a great asset."

R-5 Board President Taylor said:

"I'm convinced it would be good. I would be proud to be a part of Sikeston. I want our kids to have the best that money can offer."

Since the beginning of the vocational program at Sikeston 98 per cent of the students have been placed in jobs.

Barkett and Harper Named

Phil Barkett and Ernest Harper were named co-chairmen of a bi-partisan citizens committee for amendment number one last night.

Vice-chairmen selected were Nadean Dickerson and J. W. Hartzog, with Bill Lewis acting as treasurer. Dick Watkins and Joe Bean will serve as co-chairmen for publicity.

Named to the finance committee were Bernard Rice, Frank Ferrell, and John D. Hux.

"We want to make it clear," Barkett and Harper said in a joint statement, "that this is a bi-partisan effort aimed at securing passage of the proposed amendment."

The proposal, which was supported by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes in his successful gubernatorial bid, is supported

Future Callup Possible

WASHINGTON AP -- Certain selected units of the National Guard and Reserve will be brought to peak readiness in the months ahead, officials said today.

This was evidence that a call-up of Reserve forces remains a strong possibility for the future, even if President Johnson has decided against such a course for the present.

In effect, the Pentagon will be creating a super-ready Reserve that will have the highest priority.

Units so tapped likely will be given additional weekend training, will get new clothing supplies, new spare parts for their equipment and possibly additional gear from stockpiles and lower priority units.

They would be the first to go into federal service and, officials hope, would be in the best possible shape to meet their deployment objectives --eight to twelve weeks after muster in the case of priority Army guard and Army reserve units.

It was indicated that two of three first-line National Guard infantry divisions may be chosen for the special treatment.

There are four such divisions -- the 26th of Massachusetts, the 28th of Pennsylvania, the 42nd of New York and the 30th of North Carolina.

Some of the eight priority infantry brigades in the Army guard and reserve also may be selected to undergo increased readiness preparations.

These eight are the 157th of Pennsylvania, the 187th of Massachusetts, the 191st of Montana and the 205th of Minnesota, all in the Reserve; the 29th of Hawaii, the 69th of Kansas, the 92nd of Puerto Rico and the 258th of Arizona, Virginia and Missouri, all in the guard.

Certain lesser supporting units also may be included.

Elements of the Air National Guard and the Air Reserve may be given additional attention to sharpen their readiness.

It is known that officials of the National Guard Bureau have proposed keeping Air Guard squadrons out of federal service until the 11th hour on grounds they are already in such shape that they can be used in less than 30 days from mobilization.

Most priority units are very close to the manpower ceilings which represent 80 per cent of their mobilization strength.

The additional 20 per cent would be drawn from the Army Reserve manpower pool.

Marston Will Ballot on Gas Franchise

MARSTON — Voter approval of installation of natural gas services for this city seems certain in a special election to be held Aug. 17.

The board of aldermen have passed an ordinance to grant a franchise to the Associated Natural Gas Company to construct, maintain, and operate a natural gas distribution system in Marston. The ordinance will be binding, pending a favorable vote in the election.

Marston would receive monetary benefits if the franchise is approved. Under terms of the ordinance, the gas company would pay the city $100 per year for each year of the 20-year franchise beginning Sept. 1.

In addition, the company would pay to the city one per cent of its gross revenues received from sale of gas to domestic and commercial customers within the city limits for five years. After the initial five years lapse, the city would receive two per cent of the gross revenues until the end of the franchise.

After the gas company and the city procure all necessary permits from state and federal regulatory agencies, the company would have 12 months to complete construction of the distribution system and to begin service.

Voting Rights Way Cleared

WASHINGTON AP -- A compromise by Senate-House conferees has cleared the way for passage next week of the administration's voting - rights bill.

The measure would suspend literacy tests and permit federal registration of voters in wide areas of the South to prevent Negroes from being denied their voting rights.

President Johnson has predicted that "Negro voting will double and redouble in years to come" if Negroes take advantage of the bill.

Senate-House conferees appointed to reconcile differences between the bill passed by the Senate May 26 and the bill passed by the House July 9 reached agreement Thursday at their sixth meeting.

The compromise drops a House-approved ban on state poll taxes, but it contains a strengthened congressional finding that the right to vote is denied or abridged by making

Discuss Steel Strike Notice

PITTSBURGH, Pa. AP-- The United Steelworkers executive board and wage policy committee met today to consider serving 30 days strike notice on the basic steel industry.

Under the interim contract that averted a strike May 1, either side is free to serve 30 days notice of termination on or after Aug. 1. That would make midnight Aug. 30 the earliest possible date for the nation's first steel strike since 1959.

Although negotiations reportedly have not progressed as well as expected, serving of strike notice would be routine.

Fortas Court Nomination Draws Republican Fire

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson's nomination of Abe Fortas, his old friend and adviser, to the Supreme Court has come under fire from some Republican members of Congress.

There was some criticism on both sides of the Capitol Thursday, along with the announcement that the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearing on the nomination will be postponed until Aug. 12.

However, it did not appear that the criticism posed any serious threat to the confirmation of Fortas, a Washington lawyer whose background includes service in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal. Acting Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said the resetting of the hearing was at Fortas' request.

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., cited in the House Thursday an article in Esquire magazine which, he said, depicted Fortas as trying to suppress the story about the arrest last fall of Walter Jenkins, then a top White House aide, on morals charges.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, backed Hall, saying Fortas "did everything in his power to kill the story."

Hall told the House that "there is a serious question whether Mr. Fortas will be able to excise independence because of his intimate ties with the President and because he has been a quiet participant in some of the more dubious transactions involving the Johnson administration."

He said Fortas had served as counsel for Bobby Baker, former Senate majority secretary whose business affairs came under congressional scrutiny. Hall also cited reports that Fortas had supervised establishment of a trust to administer the President's radio and television properties.

Gross called the naming of Fortas to the Supreme Court inconceivable.

The House does not vote on confirmation of presidential appointments.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., said, "It is with regret that I must announce that I am not

Fertility Drug Used in Five Countries

LONDON (AP) — Women in at least five countries are reported to have become pregnant after taking a fertility drug used by two women who gave birth to quintuplets this week. Multiple births appear likely in a number of the cases.

Four of the five quintuplets born Thursday to a Swedish woman died within a few hours. The survivor was a girl. The Swedish quints were 11 weeks premature and weighed between 2 pounds and 2 pounds 10 ounces. The mother's identity has not been announced.

The boy and four girls born three days ago to Mrs. Samuel Lawson in Auckland, New Zealand, were reported "just fine" today. They were seven weeks premature and weighed between 3 pounds 3 ounces and 4 pounds 3 ounces.

Both women had been given a pituitary hormone extract developed in Sweden and known in some countries as Gonadotrophin. Injected into the bloodstream, it aids some infertile women who normally are unable to produce an egg cell.

Several New Zealand women are pregnant after taking the treatment. Some have been told they may have more than one baby. But their doctors at National Women's Hospital do not expect more than triplets.

The hormone treatment also is being given to women in the United States, Britain and Australia.

An infertility clinic in New York reported that 15 of the 21 women treated have conceived, 7 had given birth so far, and 4 had multiple births. One, Mrs. Martin Brecker of New York, had quadruplets.

A similar ratio of multiple births was reported by the Swedish doctor who developed the treatment, Prof. Carl-Axel Gemzell, 54, of Uppsala University. He said 50 of 100 women he treated became pregnant and 25 gave birth to twins or triplets.

A Melbourne, Australia, doctor reported that he has been using the drug since April 1963. He said seven previously childless wives had conceived and two had twins.

Ozarks Today Are Far Cry from Dusty Mountain Region Promoted in 1919

The Ozarks today are a far cry from the mountain area a group of civic club members saw in 1919 when they promoted a motorcade from Joplin, Mo., to Eureka Springs, Ark.

Out of that autumn trip over devious, winding and largely unmarked roads grew the Ozarks Playground Association—an organization largely credited for growth of the mountain territory into a vast recreation area now attracting more than one billion dollars in tourist business each year.

Travelers over the 94.4 mile trip from Joplin to Eureka Springs were advised to take along dusters and spare tires. A service truck brought up the rear to care for autos that missed bad turns or failed to slow down enough for bumps.

The club members saw a beautiful wilderness and decided to form a 13-county Missouri-Arkansas group to stir up interest in the scenic area. In November, 1919, the Ozarks Playground Association was formed.

Only one lake, Taneycomo, was included in the original area. The resort and scenic communities of Eureka Springs, Harrison, Fayetteville, Rogers, Springdale, Monte Ne, Bella Vista and Sulphur Springs in Arkansas and Roaring River, Cassville, Branson, Rockaway, Hollister, Neosho and Sarcoxie in Missouri made up the rest of the area.

Today the Ozarks playground is made up of thousands of scenic square miles of land, eight major man-made lakes, over 203,000 acres of water and some 3,116 miles of shoreline in the mountain areas of Arkansas and Missouri.

The two states reported in 1964 a combined tourist dollar income of more than $1 billion. The association estimates that some $165 million to $175 million of that was spent in the Ozarks.

The small group formed nearly 46 years ago is now supported by more than 1,000 businessmen-members who contribute time and money to promote the area.

The Association's primary work is in getting word to the nation that the Ozarks are a top-rate recreation area.

Highly successful in this endeavor, the association has turned lately to promoting the Ozarks as an ideal place for retirement.

The organization publishes a 54-page, color-filled brochure outlining attractions of the parks, lakes, resort and retirement communities. The brochure gives a complete list of events in the area each year. It furnishes such information as tax rates and industrial data.

"We run out of them most every year," says Don D. Heter, executive manager of the playground association.

The 1965 brochure will have more information on retirement opportunities, says Heter. There will be more descriptive material on vacations and more data on tax rates.

More than a dozen major retirement areas have been developed in the Ozarks in the past decade, ranging from subdivided lakeside lots to whole planned towns.

The playground association put $89,000 into its budget for promoting the Ozarks this year and plans to spend a larger amount in 1966.

August is almost here and at mid-month Missourians will go to the polls to vote on three proposed constitutional amendments.

The first amendment on governorship succession should be approved overwhelmingly.

Since 1821 governors of Missouri have been limited to one term. They cannot succeed themselves. Few states have this rule, which is as unrealistic and unfair to the people as to governors of ability. Other high offices are not limited to single terms either in federal or state government.

Many of Missouri's best governors would have given the state better and more effective leadership in a second term if they had been given the opportunity. This is only incidentally the loss of the governors. The major damage has been to the state, which has suffered from too frequent change of leadership and to the people, who haven't been as well governed as they otherwise would have been.

Anyone who follows state government knows that during the first term, a governor is busy putting his house in order. He learns how to work effectively with his political organization. He discovers how to be persuasive in the always delicate relationship of a governor with the legislature. This is not an easy skill to master.

By the time he learns the ropes and acquires skill in handling them, his term is drawing to a close and his effectiveness is destroyed because he is a lame duck, who soon must leave office.

The system isn't fair to anyone.

There no longer is any need for it.

The one-term precaution was taken because many of the authors of the century-old Missouri constitution were legislators who feared misuse of the governor's power if not a dictatorship.

Times and conditions have changed since. There is some doubt now whether governors are as powerful and effective as they should be to serve the best interest of the state.

They can be most ineffective if the legislature decides for any reason not to follow their leadership. A governor can only advocate. He cannot legislate.

There is no more danger of dictatorship by a governor in two terms than in one. The only way to curb the executive powers is to deny them to him. As far as patronage is concerned, 80 per cent of state employes serve under the merit system. They are beyond the reach of any political spoils system and dictatorship in the governors office.

If the people of Missouri cannot be awakened any more than they were in Sikeston Tuesday in voting on more than a million dollars worth of water and sewage improvements, no one will know for sure what is the public's will in August. There will be no mandate. No one can say whether the people really approved or disapproved. A heroic effort must be made to get them out on Aug. 17. A favorable vote on the first amendment proposal will assure Missouri better leadership.

The change, which would limit governors to two consecutive terms, does not rob voters of discretion. They can turn any governor out after one term of four years if they dislike his record. Only those governors of promise and competence need be re-elected.

MORMAN SPECTACLE

This is the 135th anniversary of the year -- 1830 -- that Joseph Smith and several associates incorporated in New York state the Church of the Latter Day Saints. Smith had announced, several years before, that by visitations he had been led to uncover and to translate the Book of Mormon.

Mormon was explained as a prophet of a Jewish group which had been led to North America by Divine guidance around 600 B. C., and had been redeemed into Christianity. One branch had developed and prospered. The other branch, which had degenerated, accounted for the American Indians. The new religion which Smith founded was called an advance on accepted Christian creeds rather than a substitute for them.

This is some of the background for the special efforts put into the 28th annual presentation of the Mormon Hill Cumorah Pageant which is being presented from Tuesday, July 27 through Saturday, July 31 near Palmyra, N. Y. Hill Cumorah is identified as the spot where Joseph Smith received the sacred scripture of the Western Hemisphere.

The spectacle has been described by the N.Y. Times as the "most elaborate religious pageant in the world." More than 100,000 spectators witnessed the outdoor production in four performances two years ago. This year's redesigned, greatly more elaborate presentation will have a cast of approximately 400 performers who will reenact significant events from Biblical and Book of Mormon eras. Thirty-five supervisory and technical assistants will participate. Of these, 165 come from colleges in Utah, 120 will be Mormon missionaries from the Cumorah Mission near Rochester, and 150 will be members of congregations in the eastern United States.

The pageant and its reception are measures of the growth of the Church of the Latter Day Saints. After numerous squabbles over polygamy, Congress in 1887 actually disincorporated the church and seized much of its property. But in 1890 the church bowed to the U. S. Supreme Court ruling that laws against polygamy were constitutional and officially abandoned plural marriages. Antagonism to the Mormons slowly died out. Now the church is thriving and not without political influence.

WHY NOT GOVERNMENT?

A graduating senior asked this question in a recent panel discussion: "What's wrong with relying on government for our economic welfare?"

This is a good question and one that deserves a straightforward answer. The proven superiority of free market systems as shown by their higher standards of living can serve as one obvious answer. But this is just "proof of the pudding"; the real reason is philosophical:

If there is one desire common to man, it is probably the wish to enjoy a greater share of what is produced. Each of us would like to receive more wealth in return for the goods and services that we offer for sale. This desire is God-given and, on the whole, it produces beneficial results. But, there are two ways of fulfilling it: by voluntary persuasion, or by force.

If we seek to fulfill this desire through voluntary persuasion, we must convince others to give up their ownership of what we want for something we value less highly. This can be done dishonestly through deception and cheating, or it can be done honestly through the give-and-take process of open negotiation of terms and prices. Since there are legal and moral penalties for cheating and deception, the voluntary persuasion process relies on the open negotiation method.

It is this inter-play of free individuals that produces what we know as the free market. And, if everyone plays the free market game according to the rule book, everyone benefits because no one will agree to an exchange unless he feels it to be to his own advantage.

If, on the other hand, we seek to fulfill our desire for a greater share of wealth through force, two avenues of approach are open to us: first, we can personally rob or threaten others in order to force an exchange. But, since there are laws against such actions, we are left with a second avenue of approach. This approach, while immoral, has become legal. We simply empower government to force certain other individuals to give up ownership of their property on our terms.

This second approach is the one we resort to when we pass laws to accomplish what we can't achieve through voluntary persuasion. In other words, we say, "If you won't barter with us on our terms, we'll enact a law that will force you. We have the power to force our will upon you through government because we outnumber you."

And now comes the reason why each of us should refrain from using political power to increase our economic wealth at the expense of others, even if the opportunity should present itself: Such efforts are certain to be short-lived and self-defeating.

While the coercive power of government can be used to force a transfer of wealth from some persons to others, government power is fickle when it is used to gain special privilege. It is always sold to the highest political bidder. And it is this political bidding process that increases the power of men in government and leads to the growth of a totalitarian state. The state grows in power by selling its allegiance to the highest bidder until it eventually overpowers and subjects the competing special interest groups that feed it. Thus, there is both a moral and a practical reason why we should avoid looking to and relying on government for our economic welfare. Such avoidance may at times call for a real display of courage and wisdom, but it is man's only long-term assurance that his government will remain an impartial servant instead of becoming a fearful master.

ME OR WE?

The old organ had to be pumped by hand. One Sunday after the service the boy who did the pumping said to the organist, "We played well today, didn't we?"

"Where do you get that 'we' stuff?" snorted the organist. "I played well."

The following Sunday the organist sat down to play, adjusted the stops and pressed the keys, but no sound came out. As the organist sat there bewildered and helpless, a voice came from behind the curtain: "Is it 'we' or 'me'?" When the organist furnished the magic word, "we," the music began.

"We" is a magic word. Whether we want music out of the old pump organ or music out of this old world, that's the word to use. And at this stage of the world's condition, it is more than a magic word for music. It is a must word for mankind. Our old ways of selfishness and self-interest, whether on an individual scale or a collective scale, must be declared bankrupt. This is the ultimatum: co-operate or perish. Whatever our religion or race, country or class, the word to learn is "we," with a meaning that cuts across all artificial boundaries and includes every man and all mankind.

We should say "we" because we were made for co-operation. Writing to the Corinthians, Paul said that men must act together as members of one body. The foot, the hand, the ear, the eye or any other part of the body cannot declare its independence. Each organ and limbs fulfills its functions by working together. Alone, or in rebellion against each other, they would be witless and worthless. Said Paul, "If one member suffers, all suffer together" (RSV).

The plea for community and unity in Paul's writings has special significance for the Christian. "Members of the body of Christ" are in a union which transcends all distinctions of race or caste or culture. Some would limit the idea of such unity to Christians, saying that those "outside of Christ" have no basis for or claim to true oneness. That being so, it is high time for those of us who claim to be members of Christ's body to put into practice what we preach in theory. This would be a better world, and Christianity would have a much more valid witness, if Christians were really "one in Christ."

We should say "we" because it is an adult expression. Writing earlier in this same Corinthian letter, Paul addresses his readers as "babes in Christ." The reason he gives for calling them babes is that "one says, 'I belong to Paul', and another, 'I belong to Apollos'" (RSV). It would appear, therefore, that emphasizing our allegiance to a particular teacher, or the teacher's doctrine, is a sign of immaturity. If we center our faith in anything or anyone less than Christ, we are not adult Christians. When we center in Christ, our denominational loyalties will be secondary. And when we center in Christ, we will link arms with all others who acknowledge Him as Savior.

One of the encouraging signs of our times is the effort on the part of many church leaders to "get together." The movement is toward a working unity, not a doctrinal unity, and anything which brings professing Christians together should be applauded. The Lord Jesus is the center of our lives. When He is in my heart, anyone who is in Christ must also be in my heart. To exclude a brother in Christ is to exclude Christ.

We should say "we" because it is the language of prayer. True it is that I must come to God for myself, that I must confess my sins and seek the grace and guidance that I need as an individual. But we will be retarded children spiritually if we don't get beyond "me" in prayer. When Jesus taught His disciples to pray, He said, "When ye pray, say, 'Our Father . . . give us . . . forgive us. . . lead us. . . deliver us.'" It is a prayer in which we join as children of one family petitioning our Father to help us.

We are "bound up in one vast bundle of life." Mankind is made for mutual relationships and shared responsibilities. The Christian faith teaches that unmistakably. Life also teaches the same lesson. It is an operational fact in every workable economic and political system. "We are members one of another." Let's learn to say "we."

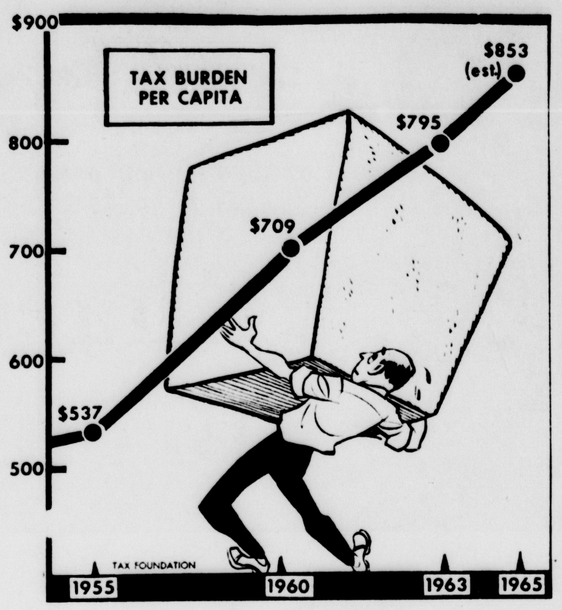
INVENTIONS AND DISCOVERIES

The quest for the philosopher's stone was superseded by the researches of Robert Boyle and his 17th century contemporaries. The experiments of Cavendish and Black, Priestley's discovery of oxygen and Lavoisier's interpretation of it, elevated chemistry to a pure science. With the work of Humphry Davy and Bezelius the constitution of most inorganic chemicals could be determined early in the 19th century.



The nation's population is growing, but the cost of government is growing faster. Each American's 1965 share of the total (Federal state and local) tax burden is $853 calculated thus: Federal, $564, state, $156 and local, $133.

PLANT LIFE ESSENTIALS DISCOVERED ON MARS

Water vapor and carbon dioxide -- the two absolute essentials for plant life -- do exist on Mars, the Catholic Digest has learned. A balloon-borne telescope, Stratoscope II, gave man his first fairly unrestricted view of the red planet last March and confirmed what astronomers have suspected for centuries.

The canals on Mars have also been charted. They were first described in 1877 by Giovanni V. Schiaparelli, who called the strange cobwebs canali. (In Italian this means channels, but an eager world translated it as canals).

The canals, scientists speculate, must be ten to 20 miles wide, or they could not be seen at all. No surface water is apparent for they mirror no sunlight. They follow a great circular course, as if they had been plotted by an engineer. From color and texture, they may be strips of plant life.

On August 25, 1971, Mars and earth will be separated by only 35 million miles. On that day, if we're lucky and work hard, the mystery of life in outer space may be solved.

When you purchase a new camera, projector, flash unit, or other item of photographic equipment, be sure to do two things: 1. Read the instruction booklet over carefully and completely; 2. Immediately fill in and mail the warranty card to the manufacturer. Failure to do both these seemingly simple things, all too common among buyers of photo gear, can result in the purchaser's not getting full and proper use from the equipment and perhaps even damaging it in some way; an unusued or improperly filled out warranty card can void the guarantee normally provided with most new items of equipment.

While many photographers, including some professionals, have the notion that licking the base of a flash bulb before inserting it into the flash gun will insure proper electrical contact, the truth of the matter is that such a practice will eventually rust or corrode the gun's socket to the extent that contact will be lost altogether. A periodic check of gun and bulb contacts is a much more satisfactory solution; most modern bulbs and guns will seldom misfire anyway, provided fresh batteries are always used.

"A MAGNIFICENT JOB"

"The drug industry is plagued by a chronic case of vilification."

That is the vivid subhead of a long article by Alice Widener which appeared in a recent issue of Barron's National Business & Financial Weekly. And the major points she makes should be far better known to the general public than is the case. For it is the public--every man, woman and child who is or will be plagued with illness--that has the most to lose if this vilification results in legislative and regulatory checkreins on the drug industry.

For example, Mrs. Widener has this to say about the drug price situation: "Headline figures on drug price markups . . .were based on the cost of raw materials alone and failed to take account of the costs of developing, manufacturing and marketing the products. Moreover, the average overall price of drugs has dropped more than 10% since 1949, while the Consumer Price Index (food, clothing, shelter and other necessities of life) have gone up 26%."

Further, Mrs. Widener cites a question and answer exchange that took place between the late Senator Kefauver and Dr. Vannevar Bush, former head of the U. S. Office of Scientific Research and Development and a scientist of the highest standing. The Senator stated: "It is important that the sick people who need a drug also get it and to be sure that they have it in sufficient quantity, and that they get it at the lowest possible and reasonable price. Isn't that true?"

Dr. Bush replied: "Yes, and if you want to do that, my suggestion to you is that you support the present pharmaceutical industry, which is doing a magnificent job."

CAPITAL METHODS USED BY CZECHS TO BUILD GROWTH

Another Communist satellite turns toward capitalist ways to solve its economic problems.

The National Observer states that free enterprise economics began this year in Czechoslovakia following the example of Moscow in experimenting with non-communist approaches to business and industry.

After 17 years of Communist rule the Czech economy is skidding, with a growth rate of only 1 per cent last year. Centralized planning will be curtailed, and will be limited to long-range (10 to 15 year) planning.

The system partly frees local plant managers from the old production target system that often produced more tractors than were needed but too few tires for the tractors.

The managers are being given considerable autonomy in the fields of investment, procurement, wages and the kinds of products they sell. The plant manager will try to make a profit.

The workers' pay will be partially based on the enterprise's profits. Production is to be tailored to meet consumer demand.

The government continues to fix prices on basic raw materials and fundamental necessities of life, while most products will vary in price, based on the principle of supply and demand, rather than government edict.

ANCIENT GREECE AND MODERN GREECE

The small, self-sufficient city-state was the stage for the classic achievements of ancient Greece. DON'T SKIMP ON HOME'S PIPING

Noises in the plumbing system can usually be traced to water rushing too rapidly through pipes that are too small. Undersized piping can also cause starved faucets, vacuum formation and possible backsiphonage of wastes into fresh water supply. It is important, therefore, to select piping of adequate size and capacity when building or remodeling a home.

GOVERNING FORCES

Demonstrations have become the accepted and approved means of securing the fulfillment of desires and demands.

Demonstrations are an experiment in a new type of government of and by the minority of the people. If government by demonstration proves more adequate, legislation, courts and the enforcement of law and decision should be dispensed with and substituted by the direct evidence of the will of the dissatisfied.

Town meetings in the early settlements of America were forms of orderly debate and resulted in the formation of needed decisions of power.

Later mass meetings were held in place of "town meetings" and only reflected the will of the dissatisfied or at their best the whims of crusaders and self-styled reformers.

Conventions were more orderly, but in the convention hall passion often runs wild.

Voting in primaries and elections gives the expression of the will of the majority without any protection for minorities which they will sometime badly need.

Anti-communists may be much concerned about the future of America and are sincerely outraged at times, but since they are not prone to demonstrate, their warnings fall on deaf ears. Any form of demonstration invariably makes news and in the hands of skilled propagandists the weight of public opinion is nearly always brought to bear in support of the demonstrators.

The quiet, well-read, thoughtful, peaceful citizens are powerless and lost in facing wild tirades and eager crusaders.

We may reflect upon the overthrow through students or other demonstrations of long-established, orderly government. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON -- There are two ominous documents in President Johnson's Viet Nam file which could suddenly change that isolated conflict into a major war.

No. 1 is a plan for knocking out the SAM missile sites that the Russians have installed around Hanoi and Haiphong, which could well lead to a dangerous confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

No. 2 is an intelligence warning that the Red Chinese rulers are preparing their people for the possibility of war with the United States. This preparation has gone beyond the mere propaganda stage, and it looks as if a grim decision has been made to resist any further U.S. escalation of the Viet Nam war.

The Russians are building five SAM sites around Hanoi, three around Haiphong. These will have the range to shoot down planes 60,000 feet above the earth and 35 miles away.

The first emplacement was completed a few days ago and already has blasted one of our jet bombers. This brought new pressure on the President to put the SAM sites out of action before they could further harass our planes over North Viet Nam.

He put off a decision as long as the sites were inactive, having been assured that the Air Force could knock them out any time. It is no secret that the sites are vulnerable to low-level bombing attacks, and the decision was made earlier this week to knock them out.

—CUBAN SAM GUNS—

When Khrushchev was in power, the United States and Russia faced a somewhat similar problem in regard to Cuba. At that time, May 1964, Russia had pulled its troops out of Cuba, including the Russians manning the SAM weapons. All during the period from the Cuban missile crisis in October 1962 to May 1964, the Russians had been careful not to shoot at U-2 observation planes flying over Cuba.

When I talked with Khrushchev in Cairo in May '64, he asked that I take a message to President Johnson urging him to use spy satellites, not planes, to take pictures of Cuban bases; because, he said, he couldn't guarantee that Castro's men wouldn't take pot shots at U.S. planes.

Khrushchev pointed out that the United States had been taking pictures of Russian missile bases for some time and "we have been taking pictures of your bases. I would be glad to sit down with President Johnson and exchange photos to see which are the best.

"But tell him," concluded Khrushchev, "not to fly over Cuba, because we don't want your planes shot down. You would then retaliate against Cuba, and as an ally of Cuba we would have to come to Cuba's defense."

There has been no trouble since then over Cuba. Of course that situation is not comparable to North Viet Nam where we are engaged in active war. Furthermore, the new regime in the Kremlin is not as friendly to the USA as was Khrushchev's regime. However, in the eyes of the world we had more of an excuse to fly over Cuba, only 90 miles away, than over Viet Nam, about 9,000 miles away.

—RUBBER COMPANY BATTLE—

There's some interesting irony behind those charges by Goodyear Rubber against Firestone Rubber that it was unpatriotic for signing a synthetic rubber factory contract with Rumania.

Senators Steve Young, Ohio, and Bill Fulbright, Ark., Democrats, both blasted Goodyear for yielding to Barry Goldwater's right-wing "Young Americans for Freedom" and canceling the contract which the State Department had okayed as part of its policy of "Building Bridges" to Communist nations.

The YAF threatened a boycott of Firestone. Goodyear, in turn, posed as an example of "patriotism," instructing its salesmen to go out and capitalize on this alleged patriotism.

In the files of the Federal Trade Commission, however, is interesting evidence that Goodyear is not too saintly when it comes to the domestic front.

FTC testimony shows that Goodyear advertises "the safest tire in the world," yet it has never established a maximum load for its tires.

"We simply never established maximum load ratings for passenger tires," testified M. A. Wilson, a Goodyear expert.

"Why?" asked Commissioner Mary Gardner Jones.

"This has been arbitrary as a working arrangement between the engineers of the car manufacturers and the engineers of the tire companies..." testified Wilson, "because there are many things which are included in the determination of what is the best tire for a particular car."

"Best in what sense?" asked Commissioner Jones. "Something other than safety?"

Wilson gave an evasive reply.

"I am saying it is simply an arbitrarily workable arrangement which has existed all these years," he said.

Goodyear attorney Robert Crafts also told the Trade Commission: "As long as the advertising is within legal limits, I think we have the legal right to use it. I think our advertising has been within legal limits."

LONDON AP -- Backyard tobacco growers are growing like weeds in Britain.

There are no official figures on the number of householders raising tobacco for their own smokes, but a big cigarette manufacturer estimated it as over 100,000.

A large seed company said that its sale of tobacco seed had increased by 75 per cent this year over last year.

What's the attraction of homegrown tobacco?

The answer must be to get around the high price of commercial cigarettes and pipe tobacco.

The government this spring hiked taxes so a pack of ordinary cigarettes retails at 78 cents.

In Britain, tobacco is about as easy to grow as tomatoes. Curing it for smoking is another matter.

With so many householders growing tobacco in their back yards and gardens, tobacco-curers have sprouted. There are many, but none operating on a large scale. The law sees to that.

The amateur tobacco-curer may cure a maximum of 25 pounds for each grower every 12 months. The grower and the curer usually use parcel post to get it there and back.

The grower can buy the seed, mail it, have it cured and delivered back in his house for about 14 cents an ounce. On the commercial market, one ounce of smoking tobacco retails for a little over $1.

The Rev. Hugh Cuthbertson, an Anglican vicar, started curing tobacco as a hobby in 1948. He operates a nonprofit business at nearby Dunmow, County Essex.

After paying an entrance fee of $2.10, members can have up to 25 pounds of their own tobacco cured--dried and prepared--for about 6 cents an ounce.

The vicar, 65, once ran out of homegrown tobacco and had to buy commercial tobacco.

"I couldn't bear it," he said. "It affected my throat, caused me to use too many matches and made my pipe filthy."

Friends of U. S. in Tiny Nation Carry Guns To Fight off Mao's Bomb - Throwers and Arsonists

Georgetown, British Guiana: -- Here it is high noon all day long -- even at midnight. Main Street in the broiling sun is lazily normal but anti-Communists never know who stalks them around corners.

No one forgets the plastic bombs and latter day do-it-yourself Molotov cocktails. They go off regularly. Sometimes every day. They are the blasting burning evidence that Mao has pushed his guerrilla warfare to this stepping stone, northeastern tip of South America.

Only the bombing of the U. S. Consultate and U. S. Information Service reading room gets to the outside world. Here the Americans shrug their shoulders and talk of a new job classification in the foreign service: "Combat Librarian."

But the outside world does not hear of the Mao-ist Communist bombings of the telephone exchange, or of the irrigation viaducts or of the drainage systems which run from the dykes that protect this below sea level area from the ocean.

Nor does the free world hear of its gun-carrying champion -- slim, fortyish Richard Ishmael, truly valiant leader of British Guiana's front line union of agricultural and electrical workers known as the Man-Power Citizens' Association. (MPCA).

It is this union, which has half the organized workers in this land as big as Britain, which the local pro-Peiping Communists want to capture or smash. But wiry, little Dick Ishmael, of East Indian parentage, walks tall in the powerful sun with an inner strength and courage that match it.

Not too long ago the Communists shot up his car. But they missed him. This agile man did two things swiftly: He telephoned a powerful Communist leader here and told him he'd kill him the next time anyone threw a gun his way. And he began packing a .38 revolver.

On formal occasions, such as greeting friends from overseas, Dick Ishmael replaces the .38 with a smaller derringer-like model, puts it in a black case on his belt and hovers over his visiting friends to make certain no one shoots their way.

Furthermore, Ishmael has trained someone close to him to shoot from the hip -- just in case the Communists don't miss the next time. The "other person" has pledged to kill the Communist chief if anything should happen to Ishmael.

It is like that here, though Viet Nam draws all the world headlines. Dick Ishmael is a gentle man, a realist and would not arm himself unless he and the freedom in which he believes were under assault. To help his countrymen he is both high school principal and labor leader.

As an educator Richard Ishmael heads the Indian Education Trust which runs a "public" institution for some 700 youngsters. The word "Indian" is a misnomer. It is open to all.

As a labor leader Ishmael has led the Man-Power Citizens' Association's physical and ideological fight with the well-financed Communist forces seeking to capture the agricultural and industrial power structures of this land. The MPCA has been right in the storm center of a running battle costing over 200 lives.

But that is not all that has made Ishmael the Communists' Public Enemy Number One. Twice he served two-year terms as head of the British Guiana Trades Union Council, the national labor movement of this land. So he cannot succeed himself. But the working people here wanted him up front. So they named him "Advisor," the only such title in the labor roster of the world.

There are other men who stride alongside Ishmael. They are the unreported heroes of this front in a land soon to become independent, a land therefore which will have a weak inner police force and militia. Yet it will be a land which will have a voice in world affairs and a vote in the UN.

The Mao-ist Communists know this country of 600,000 Negroes, East Indians, Chinese, white Portuguese and South American Indians could be the stepping stone to the Latin interior. The Communists know that they could capture it if they capture the labor movement.

So do Richard Ishmael and the men who stand with him. That's why they arm themselves.

August is almost here and at mid-month Missourians will go to the polls to vote on three proposed constitutional amendments.

The first amendment on governorship succession should be approved overwhelmingly.

Since 1821 governors of Missouri have been limited to one term. They cannot succeed themselves. Few states have this rule, which is as unrealistic and unfair to the people as to governors of ability. Other high offices are not limited to single terms either in federal or state government.

Many of Missouri's best governors would have given the state better and more effective leadership in a second term if they had been given the opportunity. This is only incidentally the loss of the governors. The major damage has been to the state, which has suffered from too frequent change of leadership and to the people, who haven't been as well governed as they otherwise would have been.

Anyone who follows state government knows that during the first term, a governor is busy putting his house in order. He learns how to work effectively with his political organization. He discovers how to be persuasive in the always delicate relationship of a governor with the legislature. This is not an easy skill to master.

By the time he learns the ropes and acquires skill in handling them, his term is drawing to a close and his effectiveness is destroyed because he is a lame duck, who soon must leave office.

The system isn't fair to anyone.

There no longer is any need for it.

The one-term precaution was taken because many of the authors of the century-old Missouri constitution were legislators who feared misuse of the governor's power if not a dictatorship.

Times and conditions have changed since. There is some doubt now whether governors are as powerful and effective as they should be to serve the best interest of the state.

They can be most ineffective if the legislature decides for any reason not to follow their leadership. A governor can only advocate. He cannot legislate.

There is no more danger of dictatorship by a governor in two terms than in one. The only way to curb the executive powers is to deny them to him. As far as patronage is concerned, 80 per cent of state employes serve under the merit system. They are beyond the reach of any political spoils system and dictatorship in the governors office.

If the people of Missouri cannot be awakened any more than they were in Sikeston Tuesday in voting on more than a million dollars worth of water and sewage improvements, no one will know for sure what is the public's will in August. There will be no mandate. No one can say whether the people really approved or disapproved. A heroic effort must be made to get them out on Aug. 17. A favorable vote on the first amendment proposal will assure Missouri better leadership.

The change, which would limit governors to two consecutive terms, does not rob voters of discretion. They can turn any governor out after one term of four years if they dislike his record. Only those governors of promise and competence need be re-elected.

MORMAN SPECTACLE

This is the 135th anniversary of the year -- 1830 -- that Joseph Smith and several associates incorporated in New York state the Church of the Latter Day Saints. Smith had announced, several years before, that by visitations he had been led to uncover and to translate the Book of Mormon.

Mormon was explained as a prophet of a Jewish group which had been led to North America by Divine guidance around 600 B. C., and had been redeemed into Christianity. One branch had developed and prospered. The other branch, which had degenerated, accounted for the American Indians. The new religion which Smith founded was called an advance on accepted Christian creeds rather than a substitute for them.

This is some of the background for the special efforts put into the 28th annual presentation of the Mormon Hill Cumorah Pageant which is being presented from Tuesday, July 27 through Saturday, July 31 near Palmyra, N. Y. Hill Cumorah is identified as the spot where Joseph Smith received the sacred scripture of the Western Hemisphere.

The spectacle has been described by the N.Y. Times as the "most elaborate religious pageant in the world." More than 100,000 spectators witnessed the outdoor production in four performances two years ago. This year's redesigned, greatly more elaborate presentation will have a cast of approximately 400 performers who will reenact significant events from Biblical and Book of Mormon eras. Thirty-five supervisory and technical assistants will participate. Of these, 165 come from colleges in Utah, 120 will be Mormon missionaries from the Cumorah Mission near Rochester, and 150 will be members of congregations in the eastern United States.

The pageant and its reception are measures of the growth of the Church of the Latter Day Saints. After numerous squabbles over polygamy, Congress in 1887 actually disincorporated the church and seized much of its property. But in 1890 the church bowed to the U. S. Supreme Court ruling that laws against polygamy were constitutional and officially abandoned plural marriages. Antagonism to the Mormons slowly died out. Now the church is thriving and not without political influence.

WHY NOT GOVERNMENT?

A graduating senior asked this question in a recent panel discussion: "What's wrong with relying on government for our economic welfare?"

This is a good question and one that deserves a straightforward answer. The proven superiority of free market systems as shown by their higher standards of living can serve as one obvious answer. But this is just "proof of the pudding"; the real reason is philosophical:

If there is one desire common to man, it is probably the wish to enjoy a greater share of what is produced. Each of us would like to receive more wealth in return for the goods and services that we offer for sale. This desire is God-given and, on the whole, it produces beneficial results. But, there are two ways of fulfilling it: by voluntary persuasion, or by force.

If we seek to fulfill this desire through voluntary persuasion, we must convince others to give up their ownership of what we want for something we value less highly. This can be done dishonestly through deception and cheating, or it can be done honestly through the give -and-take process of open negotiation of terms and prices. Since there are legal and moral penalties for cheating and deception, the voluntary persuasion process relies on the open negotiation method.

It is this inter-play of free individuals that produces what we know as the free market. And, if everyone plays the free market game according to the rule book, everyone benefits because no one will agree to an exchange unless he feels it to be to his own advantage.

If, on the other hand, we seek to fulfill our desire for a greater share of wealth through force, two avenues of approach are open to us: first, we can personally rob or threaten others in order to force an exchange. But, since there are laws against such actions, we are left with a second avenue of approach. This approach, while immoral, has become legal. We simply empower government to force certain other individuals to give up ownership of their property on our terms.

This second approach is the one we resort to when we pass laws to accomplish what we can't achieve through voluntary persuasion. In other words, we say, "If you won't barter with us on our terms, we'll enact a law that will force you. We have the power to force our will upon you through government because we outnumber you."

And now comes the reason why each of us should refrain from using political power to increase our economic wealth at the expense of others, even if the opportunity should present itself: Such efforts are certain to be short-lived and self-defeating.

While the coercive power of government can be used to force a transfer of wealth from some persons to others, government power is fickle when it is used to gain special privilege. It is always sold to the highest political bidder. And it is this political bidding process that increases the power of men in government and leads to the growth of a totalitarian state. The state grows in power by selling its allegiance to the highest bidder until it eventually overpowers and subjects the competing special interest groups that feed it. Thus, there is both a moral and a practical reason why we should avoid looking to and relying on government for our economic welfare. Such avoidance may at times call for a real display of courage and wisdom, but it is man's only long-term assurance that his government will remain an impartial servant instead of becoming a fearful master.

ME OR WE?

The old organ had to be pumped by hand. One Sunday after the service the boy who did the pumping said to the organist, "We played well today, didn't we?"

"Where do you get that 'we' stuff?" snorted the organist. "I played well."

The following Sunday the organist sat down to play, adjusted the stops and pressed the keys, but no sound came out. As the organist sat there bewildered and helpless, a voice came from behind the curtain: "Is it 'we' or 'me'?" When the organist furnished the magic word, "we," the music began.

"We" is a magic word. Whether we want music out of the old pump organ or music out of this old world, that's the word to use. And at this stage of the world's condition, it is more than a magic word for music. It is a must word for mankind. Our old ways of selfishness and self-interest, whether on an individual scale or a collective scale, must be declared bankrupt. This is the ultimatum: co-operate or perish. Whatever our religion or race, country or class, the word to learn is "we," with a meaning that cuts across all artificial boundaries and includes every man and all mankind.

We should say "we" because we were made for co-operation. Writing to the Corinthians, Paul said that men must act together as members of one body. The foot, the hand, the ear, the eye or any other part of the body cannot declare its independence. Each organ and limbs fulfills its functions by working together. Alone, or in rebellion against each other, they would be witless and worthless. Said Paul, "If one member suffers, all suffer together" (RSV).

The plea for community and unity in Paul's writings has special significance for the Christian. "Members of the body of Christ" are in a union which transcends all distinctions of race or caste or culture. Some would limit the idea of such unity to Christians, saying that those "outside of Christ" have no basis for or claim to true oneness. That being so, it is high time for those of us who claim to be members of Christ's body to put into practice what we preach in theory. This would be a better world, and Christianity would have a much more valid witness, if Christians were really "one in Christ."

We should say "we" because it is an adult expression. Writing earlier in this same Corinthian letter, Paul addresses his readers as "babes in Christ." The reason he gives for calling them babes is that "one says, 'I belong to Paul', and another, 'I belong to Apollos' " (RSV). It would appear, therefore, that emphasizing our allegiance to a particular teacher, or the teacher's doctrine, is a sign of immaturity. If we center our faith in anything or anyone less than Christ, we are not adult Christians. When we center in Christ, our denominational loyalties will be secondary. And when we center in Christ, we will link arms with all others who acknowledge Him as Savior.

One of the encouraging signs of our times is the effort on the part of many church leaders to "get together." The movement is toward a working unity, not a doctrinal unity, and anything which brings professing Christians together should be applauded. The Lord Jesus is the center of our lives. When He is in my heart, anyone who is in Christ must also be in my heart. To exclude a brother in Christ is to exclude Christ.

We should say "we" because it is the language of prayer. True it is that I must come to God for myself, that I must confess my sins and seek the grace and guidance that I need as an individual. But we will be retarded children spiritually if we don't get beyond "me" in prayer. When Jesus taught His disciples to pray, He said, "When ye pray, say, 'Our Father . . .give us . . . forgive us. . .lead us. . .deliver us.' " It is a prayer in which we join as children of one family petitioning our Father to help us.

We are "bound up in one vast bundle of life." Mankind is made for mutual relationships and shared responsibilities. The Christian faith teaches that unmistakably. Life also teaches the same lesson. It is an operational fact in every workable economic and political system. "We are members one of another." Let's learn to say "we."

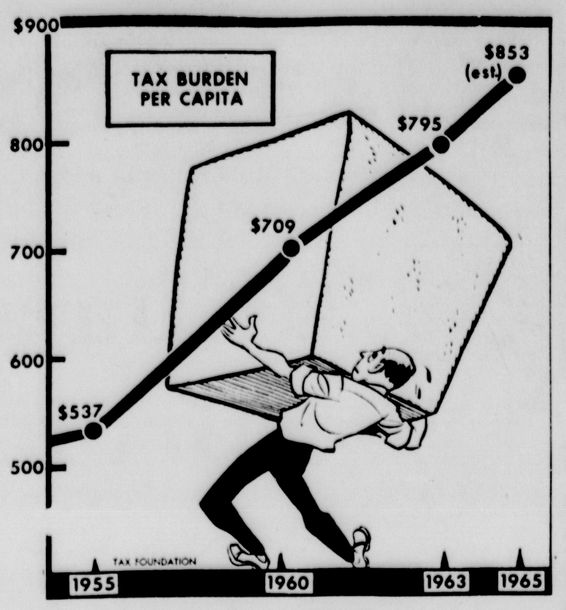
INVENTIONS AND DISCOVERIES

The quest for the philosopher's stone was superseded by the researches of Robert Boyle and his 17th century contemporaries. The experiments of Cavendish and Black, Priestley's discovery of oxygen and Lavoisier's interpretation of it, elevated chemistry to a pure science. With the work of Humphry Davy and Bezelius the constitution of most inorganic chemicals could be determined early in the 19th century.



The nation's population is growing, but the cost of government is growing faster. Each American's 1965 share of the total (Federal state and local) tax burden is $853 calculated thus: Federal, $564, state, $156 and local, $133.

PLANT LIFE ESSENTIALS DISCOVERED ON MARS

Water vapor and carbon dioxide -- the two absolute essentials for plant life -- do exist on Mars, the Catholic Digest has learned. A balloon-borne telescope, Stratoscope II, gave man his first fairly unrestricted view of the red planet last March and confirmed what astronomers have suspected for centuries.

The canals on Mars have also been charted. They were first described in 1877 by Giovanni V. Schiaparelli, who called the strange cobwebs canali. (In Italian this means channels, but an eager world translated it as canals).

The canals, scientists speculate, must be ten to 20 miles wide, or they could not be seen at all. No surface water is apparent for they mirror no sunlight. They follow a great circular course, as if they had been plotted by an engineer. From color and texture, they may be strips of plant life.

On August 25, 1971, Mars and earth will be separated by only 35 million miles. On that day, if we're lucky and work hard, the mystery of life in outer space may be solved.

When you purchase a new camera, projector, flash unit, or other item of photographic equipment, be sure to do two things: 1. Read the instruction booklet over carefully and completely; 2. Immediately fill in and mail the warranty card to the manufacturer. Failure to do both these seemingly simple things, all too common among buyers of photo gear, can result in the purchaser's not getting full and proper use from the equipment and perhaps even damaging it in some way; an unusued or improperly filled out warranty card can void the guarantee normally provided with most new items of equipment.

While many photographers, including some professionals, have the notion that licking the base of a flash bulb before inserting it into the flash gun will insure proper electrical contact, the truth of the matter is that such a practice will eventually rust or corrode the gun's socket to the extent that contact will be lost altogether. A periodic check of gun and bulb contacts is a much more satisfactory solution; most modern bulbs and guns will seldom misfire anyway, provided fresh batteries are always used.

"A MAGNIFICENT JOB"

"The drug industry is plagued by a chronic case of vilification."

That is the vivid subhead of a long article by Alice Widener which appeared in a recent issue of Barron's National Business & Financial Weekly. And the major points she makes should be far better known to the general public than is the case. For it is the public--every man, woman and child who is or will be plagued with illness--that has the most to lose if this vilification results in legislative and regulatory checkreins on the drug industry.

For example, Mrs. Widener has this to say about the drug price situation: "Headline figures on drug price markups . . .were based on the cost of raw materials alone and failed to take account of the costs of developing, manufacturing and marketing the products. Moreover, the average overall price of drugs has dropped more than 10% since 1949, while the Consumer Price Index (food, clothing, shelter and other necessities of life) have gone up 26%."

Further, Mrs. Widener cites a question and answer exchange that took place between the late Senator Kefauver and Dr. Vannevar Bush, former head of the U. S. Office of Scientific Research and Development and a scientist of the highest standing. The Senator stated: "It is important that the sick people who need a drug also get it and to be sure that they have it in sufficient quantity, and that they get it at the lowest possible and reasonable price. Isn't that true?"

Dr. Bush replied: "Yes, and if you want to do that, my suggestion to you is that you support the present pharmaceutical industry, which is doing a magnificent job."

CAPITAL METHODS USED BY CZECHS TO BUILD GROWTH

Another Communist satellite turns toward capitalist ways to solve its economic problems.

The National Observer states that free enterprise economics began this year in Czechoslovakia following the example of Moscow in experimenting with non-communist approaches to business and industry.

After 17 years of Communist rule the Czech economy is skidding, with a growth rate of only 1 per cent last year. Centralized planning will be curtailed, and will be limited to long-range (10 to 15 year) planning.

The system partly frees local plant managers from the old production target system that often produced more tractors than were needed but too few tires for the tractors.

The managers are being given considerable autonomy in the fields of investment, procurement, wages and the kinds of products they sell. The plant manager will try to make a profit.

The workers' pay will be partially based on the enterprise's profits. Production is to be tailored to meet consumer demand.

The government continues to fix prices on basic raw materials and fundamental necessities of life, while most products will vary in price, based on the principle of supply and demand, rather than government edict.

As of to-day they have permnant competition that hobbles their income and expansion. The milling industry, the packing industry and coffee business is following in their foosteps. And all signs point to the probability they will go over the brink too.

H. L. Hunt Says

GOVERNING FORCES

Demonstrations have become the accepted and approved means of securing the fulfillment of desires and demands.

Demonstrations are an experiment in a new type of government of and by the minority of the people. If government by demonstration proves more adequate, legislation, courts and the enforcement of law and decision should be dispensed with and substituted by the direct evidence of the will of the dissatisfied.

Town meetings in the early settlements of America were forms of orderly debate and resulted in the formation of needed decisions of power.

Later mass meetings were held in place of "town meetings" and only reflected the will of the dissatisfied or at their best the whims of crusaders and self-styled reformers.

Conventions were more orderly, but in the convention hall passion often runs wild.

Voting in primaries and elections gives the expression of the will of the majority without any protection for minorities which they will sometime badly need.

Anti-communists may be much concerned about the future of America and are sincerely outraged at times, but since they are not prone to demonstrate, their warnings fall on deaf ears. Any form of demonstration invariably makes news and in the hands of skilled propagandists the weight of public opinion is nearly always brought to bear in support of the demonstrators.

The quiet, well-read, thoughtful, peaceful citizens are powerless and lost in facing wild tirades and eager crusaders.

We may reflect upon the overthrow through students or other demonstrations of long-established, orderly government. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- There are two ominous documents in President Johnson's Viet Nam file which could suddenly change that isolated conflict into a major war.

No. 1 is a plan for knocking out the SAM missile sites that the Russians have installed around Hanoi and Haiphong, which could well lead to a dangerous confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

No. 2 is an intelligence warning that the Red Chinese rulers are preparing their people for the possibility of war with the United States. This preparation has gone beyond the mere propaganda stage, and it looks as if a grim decision has been made to resist any further U.S. escalation of the Viet Nam war.

The Russians are building five SAM sites around Hanoi, three around Haiphong. These will have the range to shoot down planes 60,000 feet above the earth and 35 miles away.

The first emplacement was completed a few days ago and already has blasted one of our jet bombers. This brought new pressure on the President to put the SAM sites out of action before they could further harass our planes over North Viet Nam.

He put off a decision as long as the sites were inactive, having been assured that the Air Force could knock them out any time. It is no secret that the sites are vulnerable to low-level bombing attacks, and the decision was made earlier this week to knock them out.

—CUBAN SAM GUNS—

When Khrushchev was in power, the United States and Russia faced a somewhat similar problem in regard to Cuba. At that time, May 1964, Russia had pulled its troops out of Cuba, including the Russians manning the SAM weapons. All during the period from the Cuban missile crisis in October 1962 to May 1964, the Russians had been careful not to shoot at U-2 observation planes flying over Cuba.

When I talked with Khrushchev in Cairo in May '64, he asked that I take a message to President Johnson urging him to use spy satellites, not planes, to take pictures of Cuban bases; because, he said, he couldn't guarantee that Castro's men wouldn't take pot shots at U.S. planes.

Khrushchev pointed out that the United States had been taking pictures of Russian missile bases for some time and "we have been taking pictures of your bases. I would be glad to sit down with President Johnson and exchange photos to see which are the best.

"But tell him," concluded Khrushchev, "not to fly over Cuba, because we don't want your planes shot down. You would then retaliate against Cuba, and as an ally of Cuba we would have to come to Cuba's defense."

There has been no trouble since then over Cuba. Of course that situation is not comparable to North Viet Nam where we are engaged in active war. Furthermore, the new regime in the Kremlin is not as friendly to the USA as was Khrushchev's regime. However, in the eyes of the world we had more of an excuse to fly over Cuba, only 90 miles away, than over Viet Nam, about 9,000 miles away.

—RUBBER COMPANY BATTLE—

There's some interesting irony behind those charges by Goodyear Rubber against Firestone Rubber that it was unpatriotic for signing a synthetic rubber factory contract with Rumania.

Senators Steve Young, Ohio, and Bill Fulbright, Ark., Democrats, both blasted Goodyear for yielding to Barry Goldwater's right-wing "Young Americans for Freedom" and canceling the contract which the State Department had okayed as part of its policy of "Building Bridges" to Communist nations.

The YAF threatened a boycott of Firestone. Goodyear, in turn, posed as an example of "patriotism," instructing its salesmen to go out and capitalize on this alleged patriotism.

In the files of the Federal Trade Commission, however, is interesting evidence that Goodyear is not too saintly when it comes to the domestic front.

FTC testimony shows that Goodyear advertises "the safest tire in the world," yet it has never established a maximum load for its tires.

"We simply never established maximum load ratings for passenger tires," testified M. A. Wilson, a Goodyear expert.

"Why?" asked Commissioner Mary Gardner Jones.

"This has been arbitrary as a working arrangement between the engineers of the car manufacturers and the engineers of the tire companies..." testified Wilson, "because there are many things which are included in the determination of what is the best tire for a particular car."

"Best in what sense?" asked Commissioner Jones. "Something other than safety?"

Wilson gave an evasive reply.

"I am saying it is simply an arbitrarily workable arrangement which has existed all these years," he said.

Goodyear attorney Robert Crafts also told the Trade Commission: "As long as the advertising is within legal limits, I think we have the legal right to use it. I think our advertising has been within legal limits."

LONDON AP -- Backyard tobacco growers are growing like weeds in Britain.

There are no official figures on the number of householders raising tobacco for their own smokes, but a big cigarette manufacturer estimated it as over 100,000.

A large seed company said that its sale of tobacco seed had increased by 75 per cent this year over last year.

What's the attraction of home-grown tobacco?

The answer must be to get around the high price of commercial cigarettes and pipe tobacco.

The government this spring hiked taxes so a pack of ordinary cigarettes retails at 78 cents.

In Britain, tobacco is about as easy to grow as tomatoes. Curing it for smoking is another matter.

With so many householders growing tobacco in their back yards and gardens, tobacco-curers have sprouted. There are many, but none operating on a large scale. The law sees to that.

The amateur tobacco-curer may cure a maximum of 25 pounds for each grower every 12 months. The grower and the curer usually use parcel post to get it there and back.

The grower can buy the seed, mail it, have it cured and delivered back in his house for about 14 cents an ounce. On the commercial market, one ounce of smoking tobacco retails for a little over $1.

The Rev. Hugh Cuthbertson, an Anglican vicar, started curing tobacco as a hobby in 1948. He operates a nonprofit business at nearby Dunmow, County Essex.

After paying an entrance fee of $2.10, members can have up to 25 pounds of their own tobacco cured--dried and prepared--for about 6 cents an ounce.

The vicar, 65, once ran out of homegrown tobacco and had to buy commercial tobacco.

"I couldn't bear it," he said. "It affected my throat, caused me to use too many matches and made my pipe filthy."

Friends of U. S. in Tiny Nation Carry Guns To Fight off Mao's Bomb - Throwers and Arsonists

Georgetown, British Guiana: -- Here it is high noon all day long -- even at midnight. Main Street in the broiling sun is lazily normal but anti-Communists never know who stalks them around corners.

No one forgets the plastic bombs and latter day do-it-yourself Molotov cocktails. They go off regularly. Sometimes every day. They are the blasting burning evidence that Mao has pushed his guerrilla warfare to this stepping stone, northeastern tip of South America.

Only the bombing of the U. S. Consultate and U. S. Information Service reading room gets to the outside world. Here the Americans shrug their shoulders and talk of a new job classification in the foreign service: "Combat Librarian."

But the outside world does not hear of the Mao-ist Communist bombings of the telephone exchange, or of the irrigation viaducts or of the drainage systems which run from the dykes that protect this below sea level area from the ocean.

Nor does the free world hear of its gun-carrying champion -- slim, fortyish Richard Ishmael, truly valiant leader of British Guiana's front line union of agricultural and electrical workers known as the Man-Power Citizens' Association. (MPCA).

It is this union, which has half the organized workers in this land as big as Britain, which the local pro-Peiping Communists want to capture or smash. But wiry, little Dick Ishmael, of East Indian parentage, walks tall in the powerful sun with an inner strength and courage that match it.

Not too long ago the Communists shot up his car. But they missed him. This agile man did two things swiftly: He telephoned a powerful Communist leader here and told him he'd kill him the next time anyone threw a gun his way. And he began packing a .38 revolver.

On formal occasions, such as greeting friends from overseas, Dick Ishmael replaces the .38 with a smaller derringer - like model, puts it in a black case on his belt and hovers over his visiting friends to make certain no one shoots their way.

Furthermore, Ishmael has trained someone close to him to shoot from the hip -- just in case the Communists don't miss the next time. The "other person" has pledged to kill the Communist chief if anything should happen to Ishmael.

It is like that here, though Viet Nam draws all the world headlines. Dick Ishmael is a gentle man, a realist and would not arm himself unless he and the freedom in which he believes were under assault. To help his countrymen he is both high school principal and labor leader.

As an educator Richard Ishmael heads the Indian Education Trust which runs a "public" institution for some 700 youngsters. The word "Indian" is a misnomer. It is open to all.

As a labor leader Ishmael has led the Man-Power Citizens' Association's physical and ideological fight with the well-financed Communist forces seeking to capture the agricultural and industrial power structures of this land. The MPCA has been right in the storm center of a running battle costing over 200 lives.

But that is not all that has made Ishmael the Communists' Public Enemy Number One. Twice he served two - year terms as head of the British Guiana Trades Union Council, the national labor movement of this land. So he cannot succeed himself. But the working people here wanted him up front. So they named him "Advisor," the only such title in the labor roster of the world.

There are other men who stride alongside Ishmael. They are the unreported heroes of this front in a land soon to become independent, a land therefore which will have a weak inner police force and militia. Yet it will be a land which will have a voice in world affairs and a vote in the UN.

The Mao-ist Communists know this country of 600,000 Negroes, East Indians, Chinese, white Portuguese and South American Indians could be the stepping stone to the Latin interior. The Communists know that they could capture it if they capture the labor movement.

So do Richard Ishmael and the men who stand with him. That's why they arm themselves.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I read a letter in your column from a reader who asked why people go to funeral chapels when they don't know the family or the person who died. She wondered if there are nuts like that in every town. I'd like to report something that happened at my father-in-law's funeral which may settle the question once and for all.

My husband's family and close friends were seated around the closed casket in a private room of the chapel. Suddenly a woman none of us had seen before entered, ignored us all, threw herself over the casket and began to sob and tear her hair. She was obviously suffering the pain of a woman who had lost a man who was very dear to her.

My mother-in-law turned ashen. My husband was unable to move. Could it be that this man whom all of us had loved and believed in had been leading a double life? It was too fantastic!

As my husband struggled to his feet a strange man entered the room. He took the sobbing woman by the arm and said, "For heaven's sake, Sarah, cut it out. We're in the wrong chapel."

What do you think of this, Ann Landers? — FROM CHICAGO

Dear Chicago: I think this proves the wisdom of the adage "Believe nothing you hear and only half of what you see."

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 and my kid brother is 12. Dad made it clear that we are to earn our own money this summer which is all right with us. We need someone to settle a problem.

I agreed to cut a neighbor's lawn once a week for $2.00. It's a very big lawn and even with a power mower (my dad's) it's a lot of work. I went ahead and got myself another job running errands for a drug store and sub-contracted this lawn job to my kid brother. I pay him 75 cents. My Dad says I'm cheap. I say my brother is working for me and I should be able to name the price I pay him because I am his boss.

We all want your opinion. Thanks. — RUSTY

Dear Rusty: Sorry, Bub, but Lincoln freed the slaves. Being a boss does not mean that you have the right to exploit others. In my opinion your brother is entitled to $1.75.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 28 years old, no beauty, and have been fighting (and losing) the Battle of the Bulge for the last few years.

Six months ago I was flattered and thrilled when a fellow who works in the credit union asked me for a date. He is two years my junior, very handsome, but seems to need three martinis to "relax." Frequently he gets so "relaxed" I have to drive him to his apartment.

On our fourth date he asked me to lend him $300 because his sister had to have an operation. Two months later he needed $150 or he'd lose his car. Last month he asked me to marry him but said I'd have to give him $1500 to clear up bills and start life as a married man "with a clear conscience."

My mother is driving me crazy. She says a girl almost 30 has to put up with some monkeyshines or be an old maid. I'm not so dumb that I need Ann Landers to tell me whether or not to marry a man, but I'd like your opinion. —DONNA

Dear Donna: I'd say this monkey has outshone himself. Write off the $450 and call it "entertainment" or "education." And don't marry this man unless you are prepared to continue to work and fork over money for the rest of your life.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a stamped envelope.

The Modern Christian

Is unity and understanding possible among all Christian faiths?

In faith we are involved in a bowing down of ourselves before God's will. And the present striving for unity makes sense only in the light of a sincere adherence to the Word of God.

A basic along the ecumenical path is to seek understanding of our fellow Christians and to work with them in seeking reunion. Ignorance of one another is one of our greatest enemies. There must be a long process of growing together before we can accomplish reunion.

All Christian communions are striving for a unity which they envisage differently. Too, the willingness to listen to other Christians will create a deeper dialogue within one's own communion. This is a paradox of ecumenism. Ecumenism. Ecumenical activity leads to a deepening of personal convictions within each communion, and it lays the groundwork of love and faith for eventual unity.

The fact of the matter, as many eminent churchmen assure us, is that we can no longer be satisfied with half - forgotten, theoretical Bible - knowledge inadequately understood. We must ponder anew the Christian message and make it relevant to the times.

This is a time of tension. A vast, permanent and immutable dialogue is underway. There are, and will continue to be, anxious moments. We must not be discouraged by human limitations and frailties. We can not be overly critical or utopian.

Christians are people, and through them, the Spirit of God will achieve unity.

GOLF NOTES

Thirty-five ladies, the largest number of the season, were present on Tuesday, July 27, for the club's annual handicap tournament.

Everyone played 18 holes of golf and then assembled in the club house for sandwiches and ice tea while Mrs. J. R. Watson figured the scores to determine the winners. Prizes were awarded on net scores.

First place prize, a silver covered casserole, went to Mrs. Howard Johnson who net score of 65. Mrs. Milford Estes with a net score of 66 was the second place winner. Her prize was a silver tray.

There was a tie for third. Mrs. Vinson Jones and Mrs. Bob Ralph both had a net score of 68. In an 18-hole play off on Wednesday, Mrs. Jones was the winner of third place and received a wrist watch. Mrs. Ralph was awarded a bottle of bath oil.

There was a three way tie for fifth place between Mrs. Gene Dawson, Mrs. Jackson Davis and Mrs. Stan Bush.

It was generally agreed that this was a fine tournament and the club officers are very pleased that so many members turned out to participate.

The next big event at the local club will be a two day medal play tournament on August 17-18. This is the championship event to determine the winners in all classes.

Mrs. Dewey Urban and Mrs. Bob Yates took part in the state tournament last week at the Sunset Club in St. Louis. Both ladies did well but were defeated in the quarter finals. This tournament was match play on a very difficult course.

The ladies of the local club assisted Gene Dawson with the men's tournament over the weekend. They served as marshals secretaries, score recorders and did many other jobs necessary in a tournament that had 102 entries.

Couples are asked to note the Twilight Golf on Friday evening.

What do you think of this, Ann Landers? — FROM CHICAGO

Dear Chicago: I think this proves the wisdom of the adage "Believe nothing you hear and only half of what you see."

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 and my kid brother is 12. Dad made it clear that we are to earn our own money this summer which is all right with us. We need someone to settle a problem.

I agreed to cut a neighbor's lawn once a week for $2.00. It's a very big lawn and even with a power mower (my dad's) it's a lot of work. I went ahead and got myself another job running errands for a drug store and sub-contracted this lawn job to my kid brother. I pay him 75 cents. My Dad says I'm cheap. I say my brother is working for me and I should be able to name the price I pay him because I am his boss.

We all want your opinion. Thanks. — RUSTY

Dear Rusty: Sorry, Bub, but Lincoln freed the slaves. Being a boss does not mean that you have the right to exploit others. In my opinion your brother is entitled to $1.75.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 28 years old, no beauty, and have been fighting (and losing) the Battle of the Bulge for the last few years.

Six months ago I was flattered and thrilled when a fellow who works in the credit union asked me for a date. He is two years my junior, very handsome, but seems to need three martinis to "relax." Frequently he gets so "relaxed" I have to drive him to his apartment.

On our fourth date he asked me to lend him $300 because his sister had to have an operation. Two months later he needed $150 or he'd lose his car. Last month he asked me to marry him but said I'd have to give him $1500 to clear up bills and start life as a married man "with a clear conscience."

My mother is driving me crazy. She says a girl almost 30 has to put up with some monkeyshines or be an old maid. I'm not so dumb that I need Ann Landers to tell me whether or not to marry a man, but I'd like your opinion. —DONNA

Dear Donna: I'd say this monkey has outshone himself. Write off the $450 and call it "entertainment" or "education." And don't marry this man unless you are prepared to continue to work and fork over money for the rest of your life.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a stamped envelope.

Darlene Sears GA's Meet

MOREHOUSE -- The Darlene Sears Intermediate G. A.'s of the First Baptist Church met Monday afternoon with their counselor, Mrs. Glenn Bohannon. President Sharon Breeden called the meeting to order. Then all repeated the Watchword, followed by the song "Now I Belong To Jesus".

Regina Jackson read the Prayer Calendar. Each G. A. said a prayer for Missionaries. Secretary Debby Payne read the minutes from the previous meeting. Peggy Orr made a motion that was passed to meet each Tuesday afternoon at 2 p.m. until school starts.

The program topic was, "Is It Wrong To Be Rich?" Those having part on the program were Regina Jackson, Debby Payne and Mrs. Bohannon. The meeting closed with sentence prayer.

The Modern Christian

Is unity and understanding possible among all Christian faiths?

In faith we are involved in a bowing down of ourselves before God's will. And the present striving for unity makes sense only in the light of a sincere adherence to the Word of God.

A basic along the ecumenical path is to seek understanding of our fellow Christians and to work with them in seeking reunion. Ignorance of one another is one of our greatest enemies. There must be a long process of growing together before we can accomplish reunion.

All Christian communions are striving for a unity which they envisage differently. Too, the willingness to listen to other Christians will create a deeper dialogue within one's own communion. This is a paradox of ecumenism. Ecumenism. Ecumenical activity leads to a deepening of personal convictions within each communion, and it lays the groundwork of love and faith for eventual unity.

The fact of the matter, as many eminent churchmen assure us, is that we can no longer be satisfied with half - forgotten, theoretical Bible - knowledge inadequately understood. We must ponder anew the Christian message and make it relevant to the times.

This is a time of tension. A vast, permanent and immutable dialogue is underway. There are, and will continue to be, anxious moments. We must not be discouraged by human limitations and frailties. We can not be overly critical or utopian.

Christians are people, and through them, the Spirit of God will achieve unity.

GOLF NOTES

Thirty-five ladies, the largest number of the season, were present on Tuesday, July 27, for the club's annual handicap tournament.

Everyone played 18 holes of golf and then assembled in the club house for sandwiches and ice tea while Mrs. J. R. Watson figured the scores to determine the winners. Prizes were awarded on net scores.

First place prize, a silver covered casserole, went to Mrs. Howard Johnson who net score of 65. Mrs. Milford Estes with a net score of 66 was the second place winner. Her prize was a silver tray.

There was a tie for third. Mrs. Vinson Jones and Mrs. Bob Ralph both had a net score of 68. In an 18-hole play off on Wednesday, Mrs. Jones was the winner of third place and received a wrist watch. Mrs. Ralph was awarded a bottle of bath oil.

There was a three way tie for fifth place between Mrs. Gene Dawson, Mrs. Jackson Davis and Mrs. Stan Bush.

It was generally agreed that this was a fine tournament and the club officers are very pleased that so many members turned out to participate.

The next big event at the local club will be a two day medal play tournament on August 17-18. This is the championship event to determine the winners in all classes.

Mrs. Dewey Urban and Mrs. Bob Yates took part in the state tournament last week at the Sunset Club in St. Louis. Both ladies did well but were defeated in the quarter finals. This tournament was match play on a very difficult course.

The ladies of the local club assisted Gene Dawson with the men's tournament over the weekend. They served as marshals secretaries, score recorders and did many other jobs necessary in a tournament that had 102 entries.

Couples are asked to note the Twilight Golf on Friday evening.

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — When high school graduate Betty Black, opened one of her gift packages she had quite a surprise. The gift, a lovely nightgown, was mailed from a fashionable Dallas store.

An enclosure card had been omitted purposely by the Abilene woman who ordered the gift. Apparently the gift-wrapper noted the omission and thoughtfully added one, reading "From Your Husband." Betty isn't married.

PB Routs Stars In Final Game

Piper, Searcy Take Home Honors For PB In Tourney

The Sikeston All-Stars, after winning every game in the tournament, dropped the championship bout to the host, Poplar Bluff with a 4-3 total.

Being edged by one run in the beginning frame, Sikeston took an early deficit with that margin until the fifth when the Mules banged in two more runs to bring the score to 3-0. Sikeston, with two out in the sixth, romped two hits in a row by Limbaugh and Garner. They both rounded the bases to score. Another run in the top of the seventh tied the game at 3-3, with the Mules advancing to bat. The first batter for the powerful Bluffs grounded out to Bailey, but the next singled to grab a base. Piper, who was awarded the most outstanding player award presented after the game, smashed a double driving in the winning run. That ended the game with Bluff on top.

Searcy took the victory for the Mules and was awarded the most valuable pitcher award also presented following their triumph. He fanned five All-Stars and presented just four free bases. He allowed three singles to Sikeston by Limbaugh, Garner, and Edwards. Garner hurled for Sikeston taking the defeat. He struck out four and gave two free tickets. The Mules stole six hits off Garner.

Holloway and Piper led the hitting attack for the Bluff nine as each nabbed two for four. Payne and Coleman took the others for the champions.

KIEV, U. S. S. R. AP -- U. S. track and field forces are favored to hand the Soviet Union a seventh straight setback Saturday and Sunday in the annual dual meet that has been given a big freeze by the Russians.

Unlike past meetings, which have been widely publicized the Russians are acting as if this one isn't taking place.

The major newspapers in Moscow carried a few lines on the inside pages on the American team's arrival earlier this week, then proceeded to forget it. Football, tennis and other sports have been getting a large play--the track meet nothing.

Also, the meeting between the world's two major track powers will not be televised in the Soviet Union although it is being beamed to the United States.

ABC will televise, live, via satellite, various events Saturday and Sunday. The times are 11 a.m. to noon, EST, Saturday and 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. EST Sunday.

"They tell me in Moscow that there are two reasons for the slight," one ranking American AAU official said upon arrival in Kiev Thursday.

"First, the Russians are afraid they are going to take a beating. Secondly, they are giving the Americans the brush off because of the Viet Nam situation."

In Kiev, the picturesque Ukranian capital overlooking the Dneiper River, the reception has been a trifle warmer--but not much.

Romano Wallops Homers; Aids White Sox Victory

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's taken John Romano 3 1/2 months to get back into the swing of things which keeps his timetable considerably ahead of the one maintained by the Chicago White Sox' front office.

Romano walloped two home runs and drove in five runs Thursday night as the White Sox whacked Cleveland 9-4.

That was the kind of hitting the White Sox expected when they reclaimed the hefty catcher from Cleveland in a three-way trade last winter. John had grown up in the Chicago system but was traded to the Indians in 1960 after only one full season with the White Sox.

Romano developed into one of the league's top catchers playing for the Indians while Chicago struggled along with a pronounced weakness behind the plate.

The White Sox front office got around to rectifying the 1960 swap last winter when they sent outfielders Jim Landis and Mike Hershberger to Kansas City and catcher Camilo Carreon to Cleveland for Romano, lefthander Tommy John and outfielder Tommy Agee. In addition to Carreon, the Indians received outfielder Rocky Colavito from Kansas City. Chicago sweetened the Athletics' pot by adding pitcher Fred Talbot later.

Romano started slowly with the White Sox, his average dipping below .200. Bust Manager Al Lopez stuck with the big guy and last Sunday John exploded a grand slam home run -- his first of the season. Then Thursday Lopez started him in left field -- his first appearance in the outfield this season -- and Romano responded with two homers.

In the only other American League games Thursday, Boston downed Kansas City 6-4 and New York tamed Detroit 7-3. In the National League, the New York Mets split a doubleheader with Chicago, winning 14-0 and then losing 2-1 in 12 innings, and Philadelphia blanked Pittsburgh 5-0.

Frank Malzone's pinch double delivered two runs in a five-run Red Sox seventh inning rally that got Boston past the Athletics. Jim Gosger's single and two sacrifice flies produced the other runs as Boston broke loose against Diego Segui and Don Mossi.

Bob Duliba, 2-2, who pitched five innings of three-hit relief, was the winner. Mossi, 5-4, took the loss.

Joe Pepitone slammed a pair of two-run homers and Mel Stottlemyre scattered 11 hits for his 12th victory of the year as the Yankees whipped the Tigers.

Stottlemyre and teammate Whitey Ford are the only American League pitchers with 12 victories.

Strikeouts--Koufax, Los Angeles, 230; Veale, Pittsburgh, 168.

Cards Open First Game With Dodgers Tonight

The St. Louis Cardinals open a home stand tonight that they hope will put them back into pennant contention in the National League. The Kansas City A's also return home tonight with less ambitious hopes--ninth place in the American League.

The Cardinals, idle Thursday, open a four-game series against the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers, which could be used to cut the 8 1/2 games that separate the clubs.

The Cardinals reached the .500 mark at 50-50 by taking two of three games from both the Dodgers and San Francisco on their recent excursion to the West Coast.

Curt Simmons 6-10 of the Cardinals will try to avenge his loss in Los Angeles to Claude Osteen 8-11 when the two lefthanders oppose each other tonight.

Kansas City, which held high hopes of escaping the cellar before returning home, lost again to Boston 6-4, Thursday and now finds itself again deeply entrenched in last place, three and one-half games behind the ninth place Red Sox.

The A's will host Washington tonight with John O'Donoghue 5-13 scheduled to face Mike McCormick 4-4 of the Senators.

The A's started fast in Boston, building up a 4-1 lead in the first three innings as Dick Green drove in two runs and Ed Charles and Jim Landis one each.

Diego Segui was breezing along until the roof collapsed in the seventh inning when the Red Sox scored five times. The big blow was a two-run pinch double by Frank Malzone.

Reliever Bob Duliba held the A's scoreless on three hits for five innings for the victory. Dick Radatz finished the job in the last two innings. Don Mossi took the loss.

PB Routs Stars In Final Game

Piper, Searcy Take Home Honors For PB In Tourney

The Sikeston All-Stars, after winning every game in the tournament, dropped the championship bout to the host, Poplar Bluff with a 4-3 total.

Being edged by one run in the beginning frame, Sikeston took an early deficit with that margin until the fifth when the Mules banged in two more runs to bring the score to 3-0. Sikeston, with two out in the sixth, romped two hits in a row by Limbaugh and Garner. They both rounded the bases to score. Another run in the top of the seventh tied the game at 3-3, with the Mules advancing to bat. The first batter for the powerful Bluffs grounded out to Bailey, but the next singled to grab a base. Piper, who was awarded the most outstanding player award presented after the game, smashed a double driving in the winning run. That ended the game with Bluff on top.

Searcy took the victory for the Mules and was awarded the most valuable pitcher award also presented following their triumph. He fanned five All-Stars and presented just four free bases. He allowed three singles to Sikeston by Limbaugh, Garner, and Edwards. Garner hurled for Sikeston taking the defeat. He struck out four and gave two free tickets. The Mules stole six hits off Garner.

Holloway and Piper led the hitting attack for the Bluff nine as each nabbed two for four. Payne and Coleman took the others for the champions.

KIEV, U. S. S. R. AP -- U. S. track and field forces are favored to hand the Soviet Union a seventh straight setback Saturday and Sunday in the annual dual meet that has been given a big freeze by the Russians.

Unlike past meetings, which have been widely publicized the Russians are acting as if this one isn't taking place.

The major newspapers in Moscow carried a few lines on the inside pages on the American team's arrival earlier this week, then proceeded to forget it. Football, tennis and other sports have been getting a large play--the track meet nothing.

Also, the meeting between the world's two major track powers will not be televised in the Soviet Union although it is being beamed to the United States.

ABC will televise, live, via satellite, various events Saturday and Sunday. The times are 11 a.m. to noon, EST, Saturday and 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. EST Sunday.

"They tell me in Moscow that there are two reasons for the slight," one ranking American AAU official said upon arrival in Kiev Thursday.

"First, the Russians are afraid they are going to take a beating. Secondly, they are giving the Americans the brush off because of the Viet Nam situation."

In Kiev, the picturesque Ukranian capital overlooking the Dneiper River, the reception has been a trifle warmer--but not much.

Romano Wallops Homers; Aids White Sox Victory

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's taken John Romano 3 1/2 months to get back into the swing of things which keeps his timetable considerably ahead of the one maintained by the Chicago White Sox' front office.

Romano walloped two home runs and drove in five runs Thursday night as the White Sox whacked Cleveland 9-4.

That was the kind of hitting the White Sox expected when they reclaimed the hefty catcher from Cleveland in a three-way trade last winter. John had grown up in the Chicago system but was traded to the Indians in 1960 after only one full season with the White Sox.

Romano developed into one of the league's top catchers playing for the Indians while Chicago struggled along with a pronounced weakness behind the plate.

The White Sox front office got around to rectifying the 1960 swap last winter when they sent outfielders Jim Landis and Mike Hershberger to Kansas City and catcher Camilo Carreon to Cleveland for Romano, left-hander Tommy John and outfielder Tommy Agee. In addition to Carreon, the Indians received outfielder Rocky Colavito from Kansas City. Chicago sweetened the Athletics' pot by adding pitcher Fred Talbot later.

Romano started slowly with the White Sox, his average dipping below .200. Bust Manager Al Lopez stuck with the big guy and last Sunday John exploded a grand slam home run -- his first of the season. Then Thursday Lopez started him in left field -- his first appearance in the outfield this season -- and Romano responded with two homers.

In the only other American League games Thursday, Boston downed Kansas City 6-4 and New York tamed Detroit 7-3. In the National League, the New York Mets split a doubleheader with Chicago, winning 14-0 and then losing 2-1 in 12 innings, and Philadelphia blanked Pittsburgh 5-0.

Frank Malzone's pinch double delivered two runs in a five-run Red Sox seventh inning rally that got Boston past the Athletics. Jim Gosger's single and two sacrifice flies produced the other runs as Boston broke loose against Diego Segui and Don Mossi.

Bob Duliba, 2-2, who pitched five innings of three-hit relief, was the winner. Mossi, 5-4, took the loss.

Joe Pepitone slammed a pair of two-run homers and Mel Stottlemyre scattered 11 hits for his 12th victory of the year as the Yankees whipped the Tigers.

Stottlemyre and teammate Whitey Ford are the only American League pitchers with 12 victories.

Strikeouts--Koufax, Los Angeles, 230; Veale, Pittsburgh, 168.

Cards Open First Game With Dodgers Tonight

The St. Louis Cardinals open a home stand tonight that they hope will put them back into pennant contention in the National League. The Kansas City A's also return home tonight with less ambitious hopes--ninth place in the American League.

The Cardinals, idle Thursday, open a four-game series against the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers, which could be used to cut the 8 1/2 games that separate the clubs.

The Cardinals reached the .500 mark at 50-50 by taking two of three games from both the Dodgers and San Francisco on their recent excursion to the West Coast.

Curt Simmons 6-10 of the Cardinals will try to avenge his loss in Los Angeles to Claude Osteen 8-11 when the two left-handers oppose each other tonight.

Kansas City, which held high hopes of escaping the cellar before returning home, lost again to Boston 6-4, Thursday and now finds itself again deeply entrenched in last place, three and one-half games behind the ninth place Red Sox.

The A's will host Washington tonight with John O'Donoghue 5-13 scheduled to face Mike McCormick 4-4 of the Senators.

The A's started fast in Boston, building up a 4-1 lead in the first three innings as Dick Green drove in two runs and Ed Charles and Jim Landis one each.

Diego Segui was breezing along until the roof collapsed in the seventh inning when the Red Sox scored five times. The big blow was a two-run pinch double by Frank Malzone.

Reliever Bob Duliba held the A's scoreless on three hits for five innings for the victory. Dick Radatz finished the job in the last two innings. Don Mossi took the loss.

Runs batted in -- Killebrew, Minnesota, 69; Colavito, Cleveland, 68.

Hits--Oliva, Minnesota, 125; Richardson, New York, 114.

Doubles -- Oliva, Minnesota, 28; Yastrzemski, Boston, 25.

Triples -- Campaneris, Kansas City 10; Aparicio, Baltimore, and Versalles, Minnesota, 8.

THE

Outlook for Business

for the last six months of 1965

Harmon S. Eberhard
Chairman of the Board

Caterpillar Tractor Co.
CONSTRUCTION MACHINERY INDUSTRY

Sales of construction during the first half of 1965 have continued the sizable increases that have characterized the last three years. Domestic business in particular has been stronger than expected and, as a result, dealer inventories are presently lower than desired and some shortages and extended deliveries have developed as the spring selling season has progressed. Increases in foreign sales have been of somewhat smaller magnitude than in the United States, partially as a result of the East coast dock strike. However, the British and U. S. balance of payments difficulties and the measures adopted to reduce the sterling and dollar deficits are operating to reduce the size of the gains that might otherwise have occurred.

Highway construction requirements, the most important domestic market served by the industry, continue at a high level. Contract awards during the fourth quarter of 1964 were near record levels for any three month period, an unusual concentration of contracts for a winter quarter, but awards during the first quarter of 1965 declined, indicating a level of highway construction in the immediate future not much greater than which has prevailed during the last year. Highway work in the eleven state Appalachian region will be favorably influenced by the Appalachian Redevelopment Act of 1965, which was signed into law March 9, containing $840 million in federal funds for the construction of an Appalachian Development Highway System of 2,350 miles during the next five years. Consequently, while highway construction is slated to increase, the gains will be more moderate than they have been during recent years.

Other large scale earthmoving projects are being initiated with regular frequency. In January, work was started on the Amistad Dam along the U.S. - Mexican border on the Rio Grande River. Bid openings have been scheduled this spring for the Little Goose Dam on the Snake River in Washington and for the Cochiti Dam in New Mexico, where work has already started on the construction of access roads.

Although residential construction has declined slightly during the past year, most of the decrease has been concentrated in apartment projects, thereby minimizing the effect on excavation work associated with housing construction. The greater than anticipated gains in industrial output, and especially in capital expenditures for plant and equipment, have led to increased sales of construction machinery for mining and material handling applications. No sudden softening in these markets appears imminent, since further increases in capital spending are programmed by American industries through the balance of 1965.

Increases in foreign sales of construction machinery have been dampened to some extent by the U. S. and British foreign credit restrictions and the weakening of some primary commodity prices.

The U.S. balance of payments measures, adopted in February, entailed the restriction of foreign loans by American banks. These measures, coming on the heels of the British credit restriction last November, are expected to limit the volume of funds available to Latin American, African, and Asian counties for the purchase of imported machinery. Commodity prices, especially for foodstuffs, drifted downward during 1964, and although metal prices rose dramatically, subsequent price declines indicate a possible weakening in export earnings of the commodity producing countries. These complex factors are reducing construction machinery exports to less developed countries.

Canadian sales have advanced rapidly this year as they have in the United States. Work has been started on two of the three dams involved in the joint U.S.-Canadian Columbia River development, the Duncan Dam and the Arrow Dam, and construction on such large projects as the Portage Mountain Dam in British Columbia and the South Saskatchewan Reservoir is continuing.

European construction machinery sales trends are somewhat diverse. Despite the import surcharges levied by the British Labor Government last October, imports of construction machinery have been maintained at a high level. French business has been adversely affected by the slowdown of business capital spending and the decline in industrial production, but the continued strong increase in public construction has caused construction machinery sales to be well maintained. The German economic expansion continues, and Italy has recently taken measures to stimulate the expansion of its economy. The important Trans-Alpine Pipeline project from Trieste to Ingolstadt (near Munich) is expected to be started during the second half of this year. This is a 282 mile, large diameter oil line, sponsored by a group of oil companies.

Australian demand for machinery also is increasing. Another part of the Snowy Mountains project, the Blowering Dam, was awarded to contractors early this year. Moreover, important iron ore supply contracts have been signed to furnish large quantities of Australian iron ore to the Japanese steel industry during the next 26 years. The development of these mining projects will require a substantial number of earthmoving machines.

In total, the prospects for the construction machinery industry during the second half of 1965 appear favorable. Because of a number of adverse factors currently restraining foreign demand, the outlook is stronger in domestic markets than it is abroad. When combined with the probability of a slower increase in U. S. highway construction, the most important market, it is likely that industry sales during the second half of the year will not grow as rapidly as they have during recent years.

Co-op Holds Annual Meeting

HAYTI--"The directors and personnel of the Pemiscot-Dunklin Electric Co-operative are proud of the electric rates and service we have provided to consumers this past year but we are continually striving to make them better," E. A. Priggell, president, declared in an address at the 27th annual membership meeting of the cooperative at the Joy Theater.

The president pointed out that "At the present time there is in construction in the neighborhood of Gideon a six-mile line tying the two feeder lines that come to Pemiscot-Dunklin Co-op from the M and A Power Cooperative. The purpose of this new line is to provide better emergency service when there would be outages on our supply lines."

Priggel stressed the fact that the business belongs to the consumers--that it was through cooperative efforts that the electric service was brought to his area and only through cooperative endeaver would they be able to keep it.

Over 500 were in attendance at the meeting which got under way at 1 p.m. The first 200 members to register received 100-watt light bulbs as gifts. Attendance prizes, which included an array of home electrical appliances, such as iron, skillets, coffeemakers, hair dryers, and others, were awarded at the conclusion of the meeting.

The general manager of the Missouri State Rural Electrification Assn. of Jefferson City, John Davenport, was guest speaker for the event. Dave Wilkerson, manager of the Pemiscot-Dunklin Co-op, discussed operational details and A. W. Matson, treasurer, gave a financial report.

At the meeting it was revealed that, during the first four months of 1964, the co-op distributed 8,783,402 kilowatt hours of electricity to 8,145 member consumers. During the first four months of 1965 the membership declined to 7,787, a loss of 367, but the number remaining increased their usage of electricity to 8,104,256 kilowatt hours, a gain of 320,-854 kwh.

Agricultural use of electricity is also on the increase in the area, it is reported. The co-op now serves four all-electric cotton gins with a number of others constantly increasing their demands for electrical energy.

On the business agenda for the meeting was an election of directors to fill three vacancies coming up on the board and other legal matters, which were to be handled by John Hall Dalton, Kennett attorney.

Entertainment was furnished by Slim Rhodes and his show, with Speck and all the other popular members of the group taking part.

Coin Collection Theft Probed

MALDEN -- Malden police and Dunklin County authorities are continuing an investigation of a burglary that took place at the home of Pat Waters at Malden Airport the weekend of July 17-18.

Waters and his family were away from home that weekend and when they returned the house had been ransacked and a valuable coin collection was missing. The coin collection had a cash value of $500 and a collector's value of more than $2000. Also missing was an automatic pistol.

Chief of Police R. M. Thompson said that the thief had entered the house through a utility room window.

Waters is employed at the Sterling Division. He recently moved to Malden from the St. Louis area.

Harvest in Full Swing

KENNETT -- The watermelon and peach harvest is still in full swing in Dunklin County this week. Late beans are still being cultivated. Other crops are reported in excellent condition but there is little farming activity.

This is true of most of the Bootheel region, according to the Farm Labor Bulletin published by the Missouri Division of Employment Security.

The Poplar Bluff Missouri State Employment Service office reports that practically all farming activities are completed in that area.

The Sikeston office says there are scattered demands for labor there and that cotton chopping continues, using about 50 per cent of the available labor. Most laborers are moving on to harvest crops in other parts of the nation.

The Farm Labor Information Station and Rest Camp near Sikeston served 156 migrants last week. Of this number, 71 moved on to work in Michigan, seven went to Ohio and 51 were going to Wisconsin. Five of the number stayed in Missouri and 22 returned to Texas.

The labor supply and demand are fairly well in balance in the Cape Girardeau area. Some additional workers could be used for hay hauling. Crops there are in extra good condition.

Two Escape Drowning

PORTAGEVILLE — Two young men escaped from drowning on Monday, when Herman Boatright fishing nearby came to their rescue. It is reported Garvis Dixon and Odell Ward were fishing from a small boat in the river schoot east of Point Pleasant when one of the men stood up to untangle his line. In doing so the small craft capsized plunging both men into the water. Dixon being able to swim made an effort to keep his companion on top of the water. He became entangled on his fishing line as did Mr. Ward. Dixon called for help. It so happened Herman Boatright was pretty close by, with only a trolling motor. However, he kicked it in high gear, and got pretty close to the men when he tossed out two life preservers from his boat. Dixon grabbed one and gave the other to Ward, his fishing companion, who had gone under two times.

Both men held on to the boat of "Old Boatright" until he reached safe ground.

We are told the incident was witnessed by other fishermen who were not as close as Boatright, and that he should be given credit for saving their lives.

The moral of the story is, always wear a life jacket in water that is over your head, especially if you can't swim or don't have the endurance to reach the closest shore.

NLRB Hearing At Poplar Bluff

MALDEN--A hearing is being conducted this week in Poplar Bluff by the National Labor Relations Board on charges against the Sterling Division of Federal-Mogul Corporation for alleged violations of the Taft-Hartley Act. The charges were filed by the International Molders and Allied Workers Union.

The action stems from an attempt by the union to organize Sterling employees last fall. An election was held and the workers voted against the union.

The union alleges that Sterling and local businessmen used unfair tactics which influenced the outcome of the election. They also claim that several workers were discharged or laid off as a result of the election.

The hearing is expected to continue for several days.

Japan, having defeated Russia in the Russo-Japanese war, emerged as one of the world's major powers.

THE Outlook for Business

for the last six months of 1965

Harmon S. Eberhard
Chairman of the Board
Caterpillar Tractor Co.
CONSTRUCTION MACHINERY INDUSTRY

Sales of construction during the first half of 1965 have continued the sizable increases that have characterized the last three years. Domestic business in particular has been stronger than expected and, as a result, dealer inventories are presently lower than desired and some shortages and extended deliveries have developed as the spring selling season has progressed. Increases in foreign sales have been of somewhat smaller magnitude than in the United States, partially as a result of the East coast dock strike. However, the British and U. S. balance of payments difficulties and the measures adopted to reduce the sterling and dollar deficits are operating to reduce the size of the gains that might otherwise have occurred.

Highway construction requirements, the most important domestic market served by the industry, continue at a high level. Contract awards during the fourth quarter of 1964 were near record levels for any three month period, an unusual concentration of contracts for a winter quarter, but awards during the first quarter of 1965 declined, indicating a level of highway construction in the immediate future not much greater than which has prevailed during the last year. Highway work in the eleven state Appalachian region will be favorably influenced by the Appalachian Redevelopment Act of 1965, which was signed into law March 9, containing $840 million in federal funds for the construction of an Appalachian Development Highway System of 2,350 miles during the next five years. Consequently, while highway construction is slated to increase, the gains will be more moderate than they have been during recent years.

Other large scale earthmoving projects are being initiated with regular frequency. In January, work was started on the Amistad Dam along the U.S. - Mexican border on the Rio Grande River. Bid openings have been scheduled this spring for the Little Goose Dam on the Snake River in Washington and for the Cochiti Dam in New Mexico, where work has already started on the construction of access roads.

Although residential construction has declined slightly during the past year, most of the decrease has been concentrated in apartment projects, thereby minimizing the effect on excavation work associated with housing construction. The greater than anticipated gains in industrial output, and especially in capital expenditures for plant and equipment, have led to increased sales of construction machinery for mining and material handling applications. No sudden softening in these markets appears imminent, since further increases in capital spending are programmed by American industries through the balance of 1965.

Increases in foreign sales of construction machinery have been dampened to some extent by the U. S. and British foreign credit restrictions and the weakening of some primary commodity prices.

The U.S. balance of payments measures, adopted in February, entailed the restriction of foreign loans by American banks. These measures, coming on the heels of the British credit restriction last November, are expected to limit the volume of funds available to Latin American, African, and Asian countries for the purchase of imported machinery. Commodity prices, especially for foodstuffs, drifted downward during 1964, and although metal prices rose dramatically, subsequent price declines indicate a possible weakening in export earnings of the commodity producing countries. These complex factors are reducing construction machinery exports to less developed countries.

Canadian sales have advanced rapidly this year as they have in the United States. Work has been started on two of the three dams involved in the joint U.S.-Canadian Columbia River development, the Duncan Dam and the Arrow Dam, and construction on such large projects as the Portage Mountain Dam in British Columbia and the South Saskatchewan Reservoir is continuing.

European construction machinery sales trends are somewhat diverse. Despite the import surcharges levied by the British Labor Government last October, imports of construction machinery have been maintained at a high level. French business has been adversely affected by the slowdown of business capital spending and the decline in industrial production, but the continued strong increase in public construction has caused construction machinery sales to be well maintained. The German economic expansion continues, and Italy has recently taken measures to stimulate the expansion of its economy. The important Trans-Alpine Pipeline project from Trieste to Ingolstadt (near Munich) is expected to be started during the second half of this year. This is a 282 mile, large diameter oil line, sponsored by a group of oil companies.

Australian demand for machinery also is increasing. Another part of the Snowy Mountains project, the Blowering Dam, was awarded to contractors early this year. Moreover, important iron ore supply contracts have been signed to furnish large quantities of Australian iron ore to the Japanese steel industry during the next 26 years. The development of these mining projects will require a substantial number of earthmoving machines.

In total, the prospects for the construction machinery industry during the second half of 1965 appear favorable. Because of a number of adverse factors currently restraining foreign demand, the outlook is stronger in domestic markets than it is abroad. When combined with the probability of a slower increase in U. S. highway construction, the most important market, it is likely that industry sales during the second half of the year will not grow as rapidly as they have during recent years.

Co-op Holds Annual Meeting

HAYTI--"The directors and personnel of the Pemiscot-Dunklin Electric Co-operative are proud of the electric rates and service we have provided to consumers this past year but we are continually striving to make them better," E. A. Priggell, president, declared in an address at the 27th annual membership meeting of the cooperative at the Joy Theater.

The president pointed out that "At the present time there is in construction in the neighborhood of Gideon a six-mile line tying the two feeder lines that come to Pemiscot-Dunklin Co-op from the M and A Power Cooperative. The purpose of this new line is to provide better emergency service when there would be outages on our supply lines."

Priggel stressed the fact that the business belongs to the consumers--that it was through co-operative efforts that the electric service was brought to his area and only through cooperative endeaver would they be able to keep it.

Over 500 were in attendance at the meeting which got under way at 1 p.m. The first 200 members to register received 100-watt light bulbs as gifts. Attendance prizes, which included an array of home electrical appliances, such as iron, skillets, coffeemakers, hair dryers, and others, were awarded at the conclusion of the meeting.

The general manager of the Missouri State Rural Electrification Assn. of Jefferson City, John Davenport, was guest speaker for the event. Dave Wilkerson, manager of the Pemiscot-Dunklin Co-op, discussed operational details and A. W. Matson, treasurer, gave a financial report.

At the meeting it was revealed that, during the first four months of 1964, the co-op distributed 8,783,402 kilowatt hours of electricity to 8,145 member consumers. During the first four months of 1965 the membership declined to 7,787, a loss of 367, but the number remaining increased their usage of electricity to 8,104,256 kilowatt hours, a gain of 320,-854 kwh.

Agricultural use of electricity is also on the increase in the area, it is reported. The co-op now serves four all-electric cotton gins with a number of others constantly increasing their demands for electrical energy.

On the business agenda for the meeting was an election of directors to fill three vacancies coming up on the board and other legal matters, which were to be handled by John Hall Dalton, Kennett attorney.

Entertainment was furnished by Slim Rhodes and his show, with Speck and all the other popular members of the group taking part.

Coin Collection Theft Probed

MALDEN -- Malden police and Dunklin County authorities are continuing an investigation of a burglary that took place at the home of Pat Waters at Malden Airport the weekend of July 17-18.

Waters and his family were away from home that weekend and when they returned the house had been ransacked and a valuable coin collection was missing. The coin collection had a cash value of $500 and a collector's value of more than $2000. Also missing was an automatic pistol.

Chief of Police R. M. Thompson said that the thief had entered the house through a utility room window.

Waters is employed at the Sterling Division. He recently moved to Malden from the St. Louis area.

Harvest in Full Swing

KENNETT -- The watermelon and peach harvest is still in full swing in Dunklin County this week. Late beans are still being cultivated. Other crops are reported in excellent condition but there is little farming activity.

This is true of most of the Bootheel region, according to the Farm Labor Bulletin published by the Missouri Division of Employment Security.

The Poplar Bluff Missouri State Employment Service office reports that practically all farming activities are completed in that area.

The Sikeston office says there are scattered demands for labor there and that cotton chopping continues, using about 50 per cent of the available labor. Most laborers are moving on to harvest crops in other parts of the nation.

The Farm Labor Information Station and Rest Camp near Sikeston served 156 migrants last week. Of this number, 71 moved on to work in Michigan, seven went to Ohio and 51 were going to Wisconsin. Five of the number stayed in Missouri and 22 returned to Texas.

The labor supply and demand are fairly well in balance in the Cape Girardeau area. Some additional workers could be used for hay hauling. Crops there are in extra good condition.

Dixon grabbed one and gave the other to Ward, his fishing companion, who had gone under two times.

Both men held on to the boat of "Old Boatright" until he reached safe ground.

We are told the incident was witnessed by other fishermen who were not as close as Boatright, and that he should be given credit for saving their lives.

Former Qulin Man Held in Killing

TRUMANN, Ark. -- William Davis, being held by Poinsett County authorities at Harrisburg, is accused of shooting and killing his wife and wounding a man at 8:30 p.m. Monday in front of a house in Trumann where he had gone to pick up a table.

Dead is Mrs. Margaret Lucille Davis, 33, who had just moved to Trumann to live with a cousin. Billy Leslie, 28, husband of the cousin, narrowly missed death when he was shot in the back of the neck.

The couple had formerly lived at Qulin, Mo. but had moved to the Lunsford community near Trumann about five months ago. They had separated a few days previously and she had moved in with the cousin and family at Trumann. Davis was in the process of moving his property to Qulin.

The shooting occurred in a street in front of the Leslie residence. Davis was arrested as he walked down a street about one block from the Trumann Police Station, still carrying the 22 rifle used in the shooting.

Police Chief Glenn Phillips reported that Davis did not resist arrest and verbally admitted to him that he had shot his wife and her cousin's husband.

Coroner Homer Bata said he found two bullet wounds in the dead woman's head. One had entered the right eye and the other had been fired at close range on the right side of her head.

With Davis was Billy Brooks of Lunsford who told the police that Davis drove from Qulin to Lunsford that day to pick up some of his furniture. He learned that his wife had also been there and picked up some of the home furnishings.

In describing the incident, Leslie said that Davis came to his home and Mrs. Leslie went out to meet him. He told her that his wife had taken a table which he wanted and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie told him he could have it, took the table from their home and put it in a trailer he had attached to his car. It was at this time Mrs. Davis came out to talk to her husband. While they conversed, Leslie said he saw Davis reach in the car, take out the rifle and shoot his wife.

As Mrs. Davis fell, Leslie started running and Davis shot him from behind, the bullet entering the back of his neck but coming out on the side without severing or injuring any vital part of his neck.

It is expected that Poinsett Circuit Court will file first degree murder charges against Davis today.

CONFIRMATION of Theon L. Schlosser, 32, as postmaster at Illmo became effective Monday. He succeeds Paul Davidson. Davidson resigned to accept a rural carrier position. The new postmaster has served as clerk in the post office ten years.

Kennett Man On Long Staff

KENNETT -- Robert Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arvil Goodman of Kennett, is serving this summer as a legislative staff member of a U. S. Senate subcommittee investigating invasion of privacy by federal agencies. Goodman, an honor graduate of Kennett High School, is a member of the staff this summer of Missouri U. S. Senator Edward V. Long, chairman of the subcommittee looking into privacy invasion.

Goodman has been present for the hearings and has participated in some of the investigative work. The subcomittee staff has recently investigated invasions of privacy by Internal Revenue Service offices at Pittsburgh and Boston, uncovering instances of wiretapping, bugging, IRS personnel impersonating telephone repairmen and others.

In addition to his duties with the Senate subcommittee, Goodman has been busy with staff work in the office of Sen. Long. His duties there have included the drafting of a bill to transfer the Food and Drug Administration from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and establish FDA as a separate, independent agency. If the measure is introduced by Sen. Long, Goodman has written a speech for the state's junior Senator to deliver at the time of its introduction.

Other staff work includes reading reports and summarizing them for Senator Long and his staff members. Goodman recently read, on assignment, a recent series of articles in the Saturday Evening Post to determine if the articles disclosed any invasion of privacy by federal agencies. He reported his findings to a member of the subcommittee staff.

Goodman is currently enrolled as a student at Harvard University in Boston, where he is working on a PhD degree in history. Earlier he received BA and MA degrees in history at Missouri University in Columbia.

Former Qulin Man Held in Killing

TRUMANN, Ark. -- William Davis, being held by Poinsett County authorities at Harrisburg, is accused of shooting and killing his wife and wounding a man at 8:30 p.m. Monday in front of a house in Trumann where he had gone to pick up a table.

Dead is Mrs. Margaret Lucille Davis, 33, who had just moved to Trumann to live with a cousin. Billy Leslie, 28, husband of the cousin, narrowly missed death when he was shot in the back of the neck.

The couple had formerly lived at Qulin, Mo. but had moved to the Lunsford community near Trumann about five months ago. They had separated a few days previously and she had moved in with the cousin and family at Trumann. Davis was in the process of moving his property to Qulin.

The shooting occurred in a street in front of the Leslie residence. Davis was arrested as he walked down a street about one block from the Trumann Police Station, still carrying the 22 rifle used in the shooting.

Police Chief Glenn Phillips reported that Davis did not resist arrest and verbally admitted to him that he had shot his wife and her cousin's husband.

Coroner Homer Bata said he found two bullet wounds in the dead woman's head. One had entered the right eye and the other had been fired at close range on the right side of her head.

With Davis was Billy Brooks of Lunsford who told the police that Davis drove from Qulin to Lunsford that day to pick up some of his furniture. He learned that his wife had also been there and picked up some of the home furnishings.

In describing the incident, Leslie said that Davis came to his home and Mrs. Leslie went out to meet him. He told her that his wife had taken a table which he wanted and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie told him he could have it, took the table from their home and put it in a trailer he had attached to his car. It was at this time Mrs. Davis came out to talk to her husband. While they conversed, Leslie said he saw Davis reach in the car, take out the rifle and shoot his wife.

As Mrs. Davis fell, Leslie started running and Davis shot him from behind, the bullet entering the back of his neck but coming out on the side without severing or injuring any vital part of his neck.

It is expected that Poinsett Circuit Court will file first degree murder charges against Davis today.

Kennett Man On Long Staff

KENNETT -- Robert Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arvil Goodman of Kennett, is serving this summer as a legislative staff member of a U. S. Senate subcommittee investigating invasion of privacy by federal agencies. Goodman, an honor graduate of Kennett High School, is a member of the staff this summer of Missouri U. S. Senator Edward V. Long, chairman of the subcommittee looking into privacy invasion.

Goodman has been present for the hearings and has participated in some of the investigative work. The subcommittee staff has recently investigated invasions of privacy by Internal Revenue Service offices at Pittsburgh and Boston, uncovering instances of wiretapping, bugging, IRS personnel impersonating telephone repairmen and others.

In addition to his duties with the Senate subcommittee, Goodman has been busy with staff work in the office of Sen. Long. His duties there have included the drafting of a bill to transfer the Food and Drug Administration from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and establish FDA as a separate, independent agency. If the measure is introduced by Sen. Long, Goodman has written a speech for the state's junior Senator to deliver at the time of its introduction.

Other staff work includes reading reports and summarizing them for Senator Long and his staff members. Goodman recently read, on assignment, a recent series of articles in the Saturday Evening Post to determine if the articles disclosed any invasion of privacy by federal agencies. He reported his findings to a member of the subcommittee staff.

Goodman is currently enrolled as a student at Harvard University in Boston, where he is working on a PhD degree in history. Earlier he received BA and MA degrees in history at Missouri University in Columbia.

Question Boy About Thefts

KENNETT -- A 13-year-old boy was taken into custody by Dunklin County authorities at 4 p.m. Wednesday after escaping from Juvenile Officer Ralph Lloyd and Deputy Sheriff Radford Raines earlier in the day, while being questioned at the Holcomb High School for the theft of two bicycles and a motor bike.

The boy, whose parents live near Kennett, had been sent to Holcomb to attend school there during the summer term. The officers had gone to the school and questioned the juvenile and then asked him to step from the room while they discussed the case.

When they opened the door to call him back into the room they discovered he had escaped.

He went to the Harry Rollins residence south of Holcomb and ransacked the house, taking several items including a 22 rifle. From there he went to the Gilbert Riddle house southwest of Holcomb and was in the process of attempting to break the lock off the door when he was surprised by Riddle. The boy pointed the rifle at Riddle who started running and made it to the barn before the boy shot at him, the bullet hitting the barn door which Riddle had slammed shut behind him.

Riddle noted that the boy was leaving so he went to his house and got his shot gun and chased him through fields for about a mile. Leon Privett, who resides in this area, saw the boy running from Riddle and called for him to come to him, which he did. Riddle, seeing that Privett had the boy, returned to his home and called the sheriff's office.

He was brought to the Dunklin County Jail where he is being held until Juvenile Court makes some disposition of the case.

Talk Nursing Home for Gideon Area

GIDEON — Interested citizens met at the city hall on Friday at 7:45 p.m. to consider prospects of securing a nursing home in this area.

A representative from the Colonial Manor Nursing Homes, Inc., Stan Sturgess, was on hand and made a presentation. He indicated that New Madrid county was in need of a 114-bed nursing home for senior citizens in the county. He said that the Gideon area could easily use a 64-bed home. He elaborated on the advantages of providing for the elderly citizens and showed a film concerning other facilities which are available in other parts of the state.

At the close of the meeting Mayor Tom Bradshaw appointed a committee to study the problem further and report their findings to the community in the near future. This committee consists of: Gerald W. McElrath, Chairman, Woodrow Bizzell, Mrs. Nancy Huie and Clay Shelton.

Question Boy About Thefts

KENNETT -- A 13-year-old boy was taken into custody by Dunklin County authorities at 4 p.m. Wednesday after escaping from Juvenile Officer Ralph Lloyd and Deputy Sheriff Radford Raines earlier in the day, while being questioned at the Holcomb High School for the theft of two bicycles and a motor bike.

The boy, whose parents live near Kennett, had been sent to Holcomb to attend school there during the summer term. The officers had gone to the school and questioned the juvenile and then asked him to step from the room while they discussed the case.

When they opened the door to call him back into the room they discovered he had escaped.

He went to the Harry Rollins residence south of Holcomb and ransacked the house, taking several items including a 22 rifle. From there he went to the Gilbert Riddle house southwest of Holcomb and was in the process of attempting to break the lock off the door when he was surprised by Riddle. The boy pointed the rifle at Riddle who started running and made it to the barn before the boy shot at him, the bullet hitting the barn door which Riddle had slammed shut behind him.

Riddle noted that the boy was leaving so he went to his house and got his shot gun and chased him through fields for about a mile. Leon Privett, who resides in this area, saw the boy running from Riddle and called for him to come to him, which he did. Riddle, seeing that Privett had the boy, returned to his home and called the sheriff's office.

He was brought to the Dunklin County Jail where he is being held until Juvenile Court makes some disposition of the case.

Talk Nursing Home for Gideon Area

GIDEON — Interested citizens met at the city hall on Friday at 7:45 p.m. to consider prospects of securing a nursing home in this area.

A representative from the Colonial Manor Nursing Homes, Inc., Stan Sturgess, was on hand and made a presentation. He indicated that New Madrid county was in need of a 114-bed nursing home for senior citizens in the county. He said that the Gideon area could easily use a 64-bed home. He elaborated on the advantages of providing for the elderly citizens and showed a film concerning other facilities which are available in other parts of the state.

At the close of the meeting Mayor Tom Bradshaw appointed a committee to study the problem further and report their findings to the community in the near future. This committee consists of: Gerald W. McElrath, Chairman, Woodrow Bizzell, Mrs. Nancy Huie and Clay Shelton.

The Sikeston district's first peppermint crop was harvested and marketed the first of this week. The crop was produced by Rudolph Bormtrager, a member of a small colony commonly called Mennonites, who early this year settled near Tanner, six miles northwest of here. The peppermint plants produced a proportionate average yield of 50 pounds of pure peppermint oil per acre as the year's first crop. A second crop, which will be harvested about the first of October, it is believed, will give a yield of some 30 pounds of pure oil to the acre.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, Ark. — Major Wilton G. Weaver will soon assume command of the 97th Air Refueling Squadron, replacing Lieutenant Colonel Charles B. Longshore.

Colonel Longshore has been assigned to the single manager office for tankers, as a staff operations officer, at Strategic Air Command headquarters, Offutt AFB, Neb.

In the following years he served as a tactical officer, military check pilot, instructor pilot and standardization evaluator.

He was assigned to Blytheville in late 1961. In March 1962, he became chief of the tanker standardization branch and in January 1964, took his present position.

A noted educator answers an important question of our times . . .

Does the child who is physically fit make a better student?

Dr. Hollis L. Caswell, President Emeritus of Teacher's College, Columbia University, has said: "During 25 years of teaching experience, I found an undeniable correlation between physical fitness and mental fitness."

The development of sound minds in sound bodies has long been an objective of our educational system. But, in most of our schools, emphasis on physical education has steadily declined.

In fact, 60 percent of our schools have no daily physical activity programs. And many of those that do, cater to students who are athletically-gifted and neglect the 90 percent of our boys and girls who are most in need of regular, vigorous physical training.

For the sake of your child's physical and mental progress, find out about the activities required of him daily. If your school doesn't provide a program that calls for at least 15 minutes of vigorous, body-building activity every day, the time to act is now.

Make known your concern about the decline in youth fitness where it counts—with your local school officials and community leaders. As President Kennedy has said: "We can fully restore the physical soundness of our nation only if every American is willing to assume responsibility for the fitness of his children."

For a free booklet to help you evaluate the fitness program in your child's school, write the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Washington 25, D. C.

The Sikeston district's first peppermint crop was harvested and marketed the first of this week. The crop was produced by Rudolph Bormtrager, a member of a small colony commonly called Mennonites, who early this year settled near Tanner, six miles northwest of here. The peppermint plants produced a proportionate average yield of 50 pounds of pure peppermint oil per acre as the year's first crop. A second crop, which will be harvested about the first of October, it is believed, will give a yield of some 30 pounds of pure oil to the acre.

A noted educator answers an important question of our times . . .
Does the child who is physically fit make a better student?
Dr. Hollis L. Caswell, President Emeritus of Teacher's College, Columbia University, has said: "During 25 years of teaching experience, I found an undeniable correlation between physical fitness and mental fitness."
The development of sound minds in sound bodies has long been an objective of our educational system. But, in most of our schools, emphasis on physical education has steadily declined.
In fact, 60 percent of our schools have no daily physical activity programs. And many of those that do, cater to students who are athletically-gifted and neglect the 90 percent of our boys and girls who are most in need of regular, vigorous physical training.
For the sake of your child's physical and mental progress, find out about the activities required of him daily. If your school doesn't provide a program that calls for at least 15 minutes of vigorous, body-building activity every day, the time to act is now.
Make known your concern about the decline in youth fitness where it counts—with your local school officials and community leaders. As President Kennedy has said: "We can fully restore the physical soundness of our nation only if every American is willing to assume responsibility for the fitness of his children."
For a free booklet to help you evaluate the fitness program in your child's school, write the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Washington 25, D. C.

Commencement At Cape Friday

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, President of Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield, will present the commencement address at Southeast Missouri State College Friday.

At the commencement exercises, degrees will be conferred on 137 undergraduates and 36 graduates. Two- and four-year degrees will be conferred by Dr. Mark F. Scully, president of the college. Master of arts in education degrees will be conferred by a representative of the University of Missouri.

The program will begin at 6:30 p.m. on the grounds east of Academic hall.

Cooking Know-How

When you start making up a recipe, do what professionals do: place necessary utensils as well as measured ingredients on a tray or cooky sheet.

It's not easily possible to forget important ingredients when they're measured and checked with the recipe. Neither do you have to be interrupted to go shopping for some supplies when you're right in the middle of mixing.

Keep measurements level so that recipes can be duplicated as they were tested.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, July 30, the 211th day of 1965. There are 154 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Cooking Know-How

When you start making up a recipe, do what professionals do: place necessary utensils as well as measured ingredients on a tray or cooky sheet.

It's not easily possible to forget important ingredients when they're measured and checked with the recipe. Neither do you have to be interrupted to go shopping for some supplies when you're right in the middle of mixing.

Keep measurements level so that recipes can be duplicated as they were tested.

Decline in School Children

NEW MADRID -- New Madrid County children of school age, over six and under 21 years of age, have decreased in approximately the same proportion as has the population.

The total number of children of school age in the county reached its peak in the 1948-49 school year, when the 38 school districts listed 15,070 children, according to Jesse H. Wilkins, County Clerk.

In his certificate to the State Department of Education for the school year 1965-66, some 17 years after the peak load of children, Wilkins says the records indicate only 12,052 children n the 11 school districts listed, a decrease of 3018 children, which represents a loss on the average of 189 children per year.

There appears to be 6144 boys and only 5908 girls of school age presently in the county.

In comparison, the population of the county in 1948 stood at 39,787, while the last census for 1960 indicated the population of the county had decreased to 31,350, representing a 21 per cent loss, as compared to a loss of some 20 per cent in the number of school children.

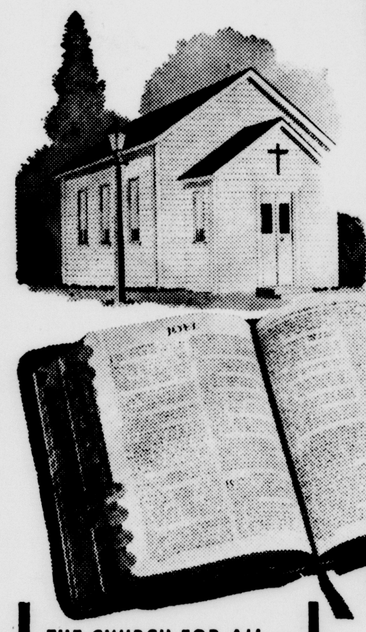
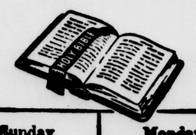
He Helped Me See Life Through . . .
The Eyes OF GOD



THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.



I was a little girl, then. The pews at our church were rough wooden benches, and my feet wouldn't reach the floor.

But, as though it were yesterday, I remember his sermon. About a woman who poured oil on the feet of Jesus. Some people said this was a wasteful thing to do. The oil was expensive; the money might have been given to the poor . . . But Jesus wasn't angry with the woman!

"In the eyes of God," our old minister said, "the most precious treasure is the love in a human heart."

No single thought has influenced my life more than that one. Most of my happiness — all of my strength when sorrows come — have been somehow entwined with that simple truth. I shudder at times to think; what if that day I had not been there?

A sermon, a prayer, a Bible passage does not touch the same chord in every heart. But as you seek each Sunday to see life through the eyes of God, there will come mighty visions stirring the depths of your soul.

Johnson and his senior advisers briefed 49 governors for more than two hours Thursday night and Hatfield, sometimes mentioned as a possible GOP presidential candidate in 1968, was the only one to emerge as something of a fence-sitter.

INSURANCE IS A BUSINESS. . . Not a sideline. If you have "sideline" insurance, sold by a company whose stock-in-trade might be almost any commodity or service . . . . better read the fine print fast . . . . Better still, consult a full - time professional insurance agent. . . He'll analyze your coverage without obligation. . . . and after that, you'll know for certain whether your insurance is safe or slipshod. . . . Our years of professional experience are at your disposal. We will analyze your insurance position without obligation. We will prescribe, if need be, and if your insurance is adequate we will tell you so. Very often such analysis, reveals opportunities to save on premiums.

He Helped Me See Life Through . . .
The Eyes of God

I was a little girl, then. The pews at our church were rough wooden benches, and my feet wouldn't reach the floor.

But, as though it were yesterday, I remember his sermon. About a woman who poured oil on the feet of Jesus. Some people said this was a wasteful thing to do. The oil was expensive; the money might have been given to the poor . . . But Jesus wasn't angry with the woman!

"In the eyes of God," our old minister said, "the most precious treasure is the love in a human heart."

No single thought has influenced my life more than that one. Most of my happiness — all of my strength when sorrows come — have been somehow entwined with that simple truth. I shudder at times to think; what if that day I had not been there?

A sermon, a prayer, a Bible passage does not touch the same chord in every heart. But as you seek each Sunday to see life through the eyes of God, there will come mighty visions stirring the depths of your soul.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
